Small Fruits in Old Gardens.

In many an old garden there are some really choice varieties of the small fruits, but through neglect they have failed to produce as much or as good fruit as formerly. The currants and raspberry plants were probably planted near the fence, where it was a difficult matter to cultivate them except on one side, and even this was not thoroughly done; consequently the grass has gradually taken possession of the entire space which it was intended they should occupy, and the struggle between grass and currants or raspberries has been a severe one; but grass is usually the victor in such a contest. We have not had much experience in this renovation of old gardens; but it does appear to us that if the old decayed wood was cut out from the currant-bushes, the grass-roots all forked out, and then a liberal application of manure given them, the fruit would be very much improved in quantity and quality. Even a mulching of straw, tan-bark leaves, or any other material that would cover the soil and keep it moist during summer, would be highly beneficial. Besides assisting in keeping the earth moist, this mulching will keep down the weeds.

In forking up the soil about these old plants, it is not necessary to dig very deep, nor so close to the plants as to disturb their roots. Raspberries that produce suckers from their lateral roots are very likely to become so crowded that none of the canes have room to grow strong enough to bear fruit. It is necessary, therefore, to thin out the plants, leaving three or four canes in each hill, or leave them in rows, say three feet apart, and the canes about a foot apart in the row. Mulching will also benefit the raspberry nearly as much as the currant, particularly on light soils. Hardy varieties of the raspberry should be pruned now if it has not already been done. Our plan is to shorten the main stems nearly one half, and the lateral branches two-thirds —that is, leave only one third of their original length.

By shortening the branches, we compel the ower and stronger buds to develop into fruit-branches, while if the cane is left entire, the smaller buds on the upper portion grow, and the lower ones remain dormant. Even the dwarf-growing varieties of raspberries are benefitted by pruning them in the spring, and all canes that have been partially killed should be cut back to a live bud. Blackberries should be treated very much the same as raspberries, although they will usually bear more neglect; but digging deep near the bearing canes is very likely to injure them, because more or less of the roots will be broken. The small fibres on the roots of blackberries are generally at considerable distance from the base of the canes, and are connected with them by large, coarse roots containing scarcely any fibres, except at their extreme ends, many feet from the stems.

If, in digging about the canes, one or more of these roots are broken, the source from which the fruit obtains its substance is cut off, and it fails in consequence. Too much care can scarcely be given in working the soil in the spring about raspberries and blackberries; still it is very necessary that the surface should be stirred.

Does the Party Own the People.

This is a free country, or is popularly supposed to be. It is not owned by the old "democratic" Moseses, nor by any set of republican Moseses; nor are the inhabitants of it. There is no "sublime impudence" in the action of any body of citizens who choose to hold a convention and effect an organization, for the purpose of attaining their public ends. The sublime impudence is wholly on the side of the ancient party Moseses, who question this right of free men, and who assume to advertise themselves as captains and priests, conscience-keepers and owners of "the 200,000 democrats in Ohio." The Times supposes that if there are 200,000 free voters in Ohio, or a greater or less number, they will cast their votes as they please, and not as any self-constituted hierarchy of old-party Moseses may order them to. And whether the number be great or small of those citizens of Ohio whose paramount public desire is to discontinue the monopoly system, and substitute the economic system in the practice of government, a reasonable presumption is that they will prefer to act in an organization which exists as an instrumentality for the attainment of that end, to acting as the tools of any co-partnership of political Moseses, who proclaim that they stand upon a platform which distinctly and positively denies that the anti-monopoly end is the object for which that co-pertnership of spoilsmen and salary-thieves and pig-iron pirates exists.—Chicago Times.

A Nelson Street dry goods man who is well known for his politeness, has a father who is an excellent citizen, but not a very smooth talker. They were so busy at the store Saturday afternoon that the old gentleman was called in to help. Among the customers was a young lady who appeared to be waiting to trade with him whose elderly appearance invited her confidence. Soon an opportunity offered, and leaning over the counter as an invitation for him to do the same, she whispered her order. He bent closer to her, and said, "what's that?" in a voice that started the perspiration to her forehead. Again she whispered. "Oh, elastic;" said he in a tone that could be heard on the walk, and looking much pleased with his success. "What kind of elastic?" he added, bending his head closer to the burning face of the perspiring maiden. Once more she tremblingly whispered. "For garters, hey?" he repeated, even louder than before, without noticing the horror-struck expression of the almost fainting young lady.—"Something fancy, I suppose," he went on to say, in happy oblivion of the store full of people; "young people now-a-days want things nice. My old woman uses a shoe string, and sails around without noticing the difference." Then he got down with the box, and turned around to show it, but the customer was gone. He stood around with the elastic some five minutes in waiting, but she did not return, and it is likely he has forgotten all about the circumstance now.—Danbury News.

An Appreciative Bird.

A correspondent of a Georgia paper writes that in Athens, that State, in a beautiful residence, set in a snug grove, live Mr. Y. L. G. Harris and his wife. For five years a pair of red birds have built their nest in a tree very near their parlor window; and each successive year the old birds bring back their young of the year before, to live upon the bounty of their benefactors. The most peculiar thing, though, is the passion which the patriarch bird has for music. As soon as any one commences playing on the piano in the parlor, this remarkable bird flies to the window-sill, and there, by the grotesquest motions shows how completely his soul is aroused by the harmony. When the window is down he will dash himself against the pane of glass with the utmost fury, as if to get inside, but when the window is raised never ventures further than the sill.

—The Maine Democrats think they can elect a governor in September, with the right kind of man and platform. The feat has not been done in twenty years.

Lost.

Prentice Mulford thus writes of his experience at the Vienna exposition: "Of course I got lost. I couldn't find the 'Ausgang.'—This, in German, means the 'git out place. I must have walked seven miles in that maze of buildings before the 'Ausgang' presented itself. I knew that it would come sooner or later. I knew that if I simply stood still the 'Ausgang' would come round where I stood. I think about five hundred other people were similarly lost, for they kept coming up to me and inquiring in all sorts of languages where the 'Ausgang' was. I said to them: 'I am simply a fellow-worm of the dust like yourself. Yesterday, or the day before yesterday, or last week, or maybe last year, I managed with a great deal af difficulty to get in here, and I've been wandering around ever since trying to get out. Some said 'Yaw,' and some said 'So!'"

Flirtation at Cape May.

If young ladies who pride themselves on their skill and tact in the art of flirtation could only hear all that is said of them behind their backs we think they would renounce their indelicate blandishments forever, and blush, if not past that wholesome indication of shame, for the false part they had so far played in society. The practical flirt is looked upon by all young men, save those green enough to be her victims, merely as a frivolous piece of human trumpery, with whom it may be well enough to while away an hour or two now and then, when nothing better in the way of amusement offers.—[Cape May Daily Wave.

BREVITIES.

—A German, a printer from Port Wayne, Ind., came near losing his life by a fall from a precipice on Mount Washington, Monday. He had walked out to the edge, and a stone giving away he was rolled and tumbled to a distance of about 150 feet, bruising him badly and tearing his clothing. He reports that when he came to his senses he was at the foot in a rough, scrubby country, and lost as to the points of compass. He managed, however, by following a stream to find the road, where, entirely exhausted, he remained until a team came along and took him to Gorham.

—The Worthington (Minn.) Advance says: "We are often asked by correspondents about game in this vicinity. If millions of ducks, brant and geese, and large numbers of cranes, pelicans, swans and countless numbers of grouse can be called game, then there is plenty of game here, and if pitching fish from the lakes with an ordinary three-tined hay fork is any indication of good fishing, then we have good fishing here."

—Two amusing answers of the son of a Western Senator at West Point are recorded. On being asked into how many pieces a discharged spherical shot will burst, he replied, "Into two, at least, sir, I should think," and on being asked what were the uses of the vent in a piece of ordinance, replied, after mature consideration, that "it showed the upper side of the gun, and was useful to spike it with."

—A West Chester (Pa.) merchant set a steel trap in the cellar to catch rats, and the next morning it was missing. A few days thereafter a boy saw a strange cat enter the cellar carrying a piece of meat in her mouth. She went behind a lot of empty barrels, and presently returned without the meat. The barrels were removed, and there was a cat eating the meat, with one leg fast in the missing steel trap.

—A La Grange (Mo.) girl was taken suddenly ill, recently, and for four days did not sleep a moment or partake of any food. But the strangest part of it is that soon after the attack she began to speak in rhyme, and every sentence she uttered for several days was in measure and verse, often "beautiful and highly poetic." She is better now.

—Not many men disappoint their heirs in the way Seymour N. Case, of Hartford, has done. It was supposed he was worth some $15,000, but an inventory of his estate shows that he held property at Hartford at the time of his death to the amount of $143,111, while real estate held at the West will probably bring the sum total up to $200,000.

—Mr. Hosenfelt, of Amador, Cal., used giant-powder cartridges to scare fish into his net, and the cartridge he held in his hand exploded, from sympathy with the one in the stream, and blew Mr. Hosenfelt into a great many pieces.

Small Fruits in Old Gardens.

In many an old garden there are some really choice varieties of the small fruits, but through neglect they have failed to produce as much or as good fruit as formerly. The currants and raspberry plants were probably planted near the fence, where it was a difficult matter to cultivate them except on one side, and even this was not thoroughly done; consequently the grass has gradually taken possession of the entire space which it was intended they should occupy, and the struggle between grass and currants or raspberries has been a severe one; but grass is usually the victor in such a contest. We have not had much experience in this renovation of old gardens; but it does appear to us that if the old decayed wood was cut out from the currant-bushes, the grass-roots all forked out, and then a liberal application of manure given them, the fruit would be very much improved in quantity and quality. Even a mulching of straw, tan-bark leaves, or any other material that would cover the soil and keep it moist during summer, would be highly beneficial. Besides assisting in keeping the earth moist, this mulching will keep down the weeds.

In forking up the soil about these old plants, it is not necessary to dig very deep, nor so close to the plants as to disturb their roots. Raspberries that produce suckers from their lateral roots are very likely to become so crowded that none of the canes have room to grow strong enough to bear fruit. It is necessary, therefore, to thin out the plants, leaving three or four canes in each hill, or leave them in rows, say three feet apart, and the canes about a foot apart in the row. Mulching will also benefit the raspberry nearly as much as the currant, particularly on light soils. Hardy varieties of the raspberry should be pruned now if it has not already been done. Our plan is to shorten the main stems nearly one half, and the lateral branches two-thirds —that is, leave only one third of their original length.

By shortening the branches, we compel the ower and stronger buds to develop into fruit-branches, while if the cane is left entire, the smaller buds on the upper portion grow, and the lower ones remain dormant. Even the dwarf-growing varieties of raspberries are benefitted by pruning them in the spring, and all canes that have been partially killed should be cut back to a live bud. Blackberries should be treated very much the same as raspberries, although they will usually bear more neglect; but digging deep near the bearing canes is very likely to injure them, because more or less of the roots will be broken. The small fibres on the roots of blackberries are generally at considerable distance from the base of the canes, and are connected with them by large, coarse roots containing scarcely any fibres, except at their extreme ends, many feet from the stems.

If, in digging about the canes, one or more of these roots are broken, the source from which the fruit obtains its substance is cut off, and it fails in consequence. Too much care can scarcely be given in working the soil in the spring about raspberries and blackberries; still it is very necessary that the surface should be stirred.

Does the Party Own the People.

This is a free country, or is popularly supposed to be. It is not owned by the old "democratic" Moseses, nor by any set of republican Moseses; nor are the inhabitants of it. There is no "sublime impudence" in the action of any body of citizens who choose to hold a convention and effect an organization, for the purpose of attaining their public ends. The sublime impudence is wholly on the side of the ancient party Moseses, who question this right of free men, and who assume to advertise themselves as captains and priests, conscience-keepers and owners of "the 200,000 democrats in Ohio." The Times supposes that if there are 200,000 free voters in Ohio, or a greater or less number, they will cast their votes as they please, and not as any self-constituted hierarchy of old-party Moseses may order them to. And whether the number be great or small of those citizens of Ohio whose paramount public desire is to discontinue the monopoly system, and substitute the economic system in the practice of government, a reasonable presumption is that they will prefer to act in an organization which exists as an instrumentality for the attainment of that end, to acting as the tools of any co-partnership of political Moseses, who proclaim that they stand upon a platform which distinctly and positively denies that the anti-monopoly end is the object for which that co-pertnership of spoilsmen and salary-thieves and pig-iron pirates exists.—Chicago Times.

A Nelson Street dry goods man who is well known for his politeness, has a father who is an excellent citizen, but not a very smooth talker. They were so busy at the store Saturday afternoon that the old gentleman was called in to help. Among the customers was a young lady who appeared to be waiting to trade with him whose elderly appearance invited her confidence. Soon an opportunity offered, and leaning over the counter as an invitation for him to do the same, she whispered her order. He bent closer to her, and said, "what's that?" in a voice that started the perspiration to her forehead. Again she whispered. "Oh, elastic;" said he in a tone that could be heard on the walk, and looking much pleased with his success. "What kind of elastic?" he added, bending his head closer to the burning face of the perspiring maiden. Once more she tremblingly whispered. "For garters, hey?" he repeated, even louder than before, without noticing the horror-struck expression of the almost fainting young lady.—"Something fancy, I suppose," he went on to say, in happy oblivion of the store full of people; "young people now-a-days want things nice. My old woman uses a shoe string, and sails around without noticing the difference." Then he got down with the box, and turned around to show it, but the customer was gone. He stood around with the elastic some five minutes in waiting, but she did not return, and it is likely he has forgotten all about the circumstance now.—Danbury News.

An Appreciative Bird.

A correspondent of a Georgia paper writes that in Athens, that State, in a beautiful residence, set in a snug grove, live Mr. Y. L G. Harris and his wife. For five years a pair of red birds have built their nest in a tree very near their parlor window; and each successive year the old birds bring back their young of the year before, to live upon the bounty of their benefactors. The most peculiar thing, though, is the passion which the patriarch bird has for music. As soon as any one commences playing on the piano in the parlor, this remarkable bird flies to the window-sill, and there, by the grotesquest motions shows how completely his soul is aroused by the harmony. When the window is down he will dash himself against the pane of glass with the utmost fury, as if to get inside, but when the window is raised never ventures further than the sill.

—The Maine Democrats think they can elect a governor in September, with the right kind of man and platform. The feat has not been done in twenty years.

Lost.

Prentice Mulford thus writes of his experience at the Vienna exposition: "Of course I got lost. I couldn't find the 'Ausgang.'—This, in German, means the 'git out place. I must have walked seven miles in that maze of buildings before the 'Ausgang' presented itself. I knew that it would come sooner or later. I knew that if I simply stood still the 'Ausgang' would come round where I stood. I think about five hundred other people were similarly lost, for they kept coming up to me and inquiring in all sorts of languages where the 'Ausgang' was. I said to them: 'I am simply a fellow-worm of the dust like yourself. Yesterday, or the day before yesterday, or last week, or maybe last year, I managed with a great deal af difficulty to get in here, and I've been wandering around ever since trying to get out. Some said 'Yaw,' and some said 'So!'"

If young ladies who pride themselves on their skill and tact in the art of flirtation could only hear all that is said of them behind their backs we think they would renounce their indelicate blandishments forever, and blush, if not past that wholesome indication of shame, for the false part they had so far played in society. The practical flirt is looked upon by all young men, save those green enough to be her victims, merely as a frivolous piece of human trumpery, with whom it may be well enough to while away an hour or two now and then, when nothing better in the way of amusement offers.—[Cape May Daily Wave.

BREVITIES.

—A German, a printer from Port Wayne, Ind., came near losing his life by a fall from a precipice on Mount Washington, Monday. He had walked out to the edge, and a stone giving away he was rolled and tumbled to a distance of about 150 feet, bruising him badly and tearing his clothing. He reports that when he came to his senses he was at the foot in a rough, scrubby country, and lost as to the points of compass. He managed, however, by following a stream to find the road, where, entirely exhausted, he remained until a team came along and took him to Gorham.

—The Worthington (Minn.) Advance says: "We are often asked by correspondents about game in this vicinity. If millions of ducks, brant and geese, and large numbers of cranes, pelicans, swans and countless numbers of grouse can be called game, then there is plenty of game here, and if pitching fish from the lakes with an ordinary three-tined hay fork is any indication of good fishing, then we have good fishing here."

—Two amusing answers of the son of a Western Senator at West Point are recorded. On being asked into how many pieces a discharged spherical shot will burst, he replied, "Into two, at least, sir, I should think," and on being asked what were the uses of the vent in a piece of ordinance, replied, after mature consideration, that "it showed the upper side of the gun, and was useful to spike it with."

—A West Chester (Pa.) merchant set a steel trap in the cellar to catch rats, and the next morning it was missing. A few days thereafter a boy saw a strange cat enter the cellar carrying a piece of meat in her mouth. She went behind a lot of empty barrels, and presently returned without the meat. The barrels were removed, and there was a cat eating the meat, with one leg fast in the missing steel trap.

—A La Grange (Mo.) girl was taken suddenly ill, recently, and for four days did not sleep a moment or partake of any food. But the strangest part of it is that soon after the attack she began to speak in rhyme, and every sentence she uttered for several days was in measure and verse, often "beautiful and highly poetic." She is better now.

—Not many men disappoint their heirs in the way Seymour N. Case, of Hartford, has done. It was supposed he was worth some $15,000, but an inventory of his estate shows that he held property at Hartford at the time of his death to the amount of $143,111, while real estate held at the West will probably bring the sum total up to $200,000.

—Mr. Hosenfelt, of Amador, Cal., used giant-powder cartridges to scare fish into his net, and the cartridge he held in his hand exploded, from sympathy with the one in the stream, and blew Mr. Hosenfelt into a great many pieces.

"I thank you for the opportunity of expressing my opinion of the great value of the 'NEW AMERICAN' and 'ANNUAL CYCLOPÆDIA.' I own the work and have it with me here, and am in the habit of consulting it every day to my very great advantage. It is most admirable. J. L. MOTLEY,

"Boston, Oct. 25, 1869.

I own Appletons' Cyclopædia, and use it constantly. It should be in every library, public and private—I would say in every house, within reach of every family. The young should use it.
CHARLES SUMNER."

"I use the 'New American Cyclopædia' every day, generally many times a day. I think it the best work of the kind in existence. It is singularly well suited to families. The children who grow up in a house where there is a copy of it within reach, can hardly escape becoming well-informed persons. I value it very highly, and am glad of this opportunity of testifying my gratitude.

Temptation.

The Middletown Mercury speaks of the superlative music to be heard in Dr. Seward's church in that village, in terms of high appreciation, then thrills us by saying that "The solo, sung by Mrs. Henry L. Adams, was most correctly and beautifully rendered, and if listened to elsewhere than in a house of worship, would have been followed by the applause which it seemed difficult for the admiring audience to repress." Will the Mercury man please consider us as finding it quite impossible to repress the applause that wells up within us, not because of the solo, but because of his own most admirable way of praising the solo? Mrs. Adams without question merited the applause which "the admiring audience found it so difficult to repress," yet we rejoice that they did repress it nevertheless. Two desirable attributes of the Middletown people are brought before us by this incident in a most cheering way; first their possession of capital singers, and second a powerful restraint upon their feelings in a house of worship. Mercurial this, but not explosive.

Another Portland in Ashes.

The telegraph this morning apprises us of another fearful visitation by fire, in which the Portland conflagration of the Atlantic coast finds its counterpart in its devastated namesake on the Pacific. For while the loss foots up only two millions it is relatively as large as that of the New England city. Under a high wind through all of Saturday there rushed all over the city of Portland in Oregon a flame started at four o'clock in the morning by hellish incendiaries, who not satisfied with starting kept it going by building new fires at different points. At one time the fire raged for half a mile in one direction and a quarter in another, and though help from another city was received it only stopped when there was naught for it to feed upon. It leaves in its track the ashes of two engine houses, two sash factories, three foundries, four mills, five hotels, one hundred stores and two hundred and fifty dwellings. One hundred and fifty families have sought refuge in churches and encamp in the park for lack of roofs to cover their heads. When we consider that Portland has only 8,293 inhabitants, or three thousand less than Rondout, it will be seen that this is relatively a very large conflagration. An appeal for aid is made, to which a ready response should be received from all the land.

Dusenberry.

We take advantage of the first opportunity to call the attention of the readers of The Freeman to the advertisement of Dusenberry. It is published in the Liberty Register, and beginneth in the following solemn and convincing way: "It is admitted that we not only love our wives, but also our children, brothers and sisters. They die. We want a suitable coffin or casket for the jewel, and a tender and careful hand to take it up and bear it to its last resting place. Who will do it for us." Breaking the silent pause that succeeds this doleful question, the voice of the helpful Dusenberry rises on the air. He assures our stricken souls that he will do it.—He is provided with all accessories, and is waiting at all times, as his inimitable advertisement proceeds to say "A good hearse and peerless team of horses in waiting at all times to receive or deliver a corpse at the railroad station, or go elsewhere as far as human voice is heard or human track is run." We are satisfied. Dusenberry will not fail us. Whether we come to the station unexpectedly dead from collision, or by appointment, Dusenberry will be there with his "peerless team of horses." But in one thing put us in advance of the fact. After his distinguished services to defunct humanity when this sweet and smiling undertaker pays the debt of nature, who will be found competent to bury him? Ah, Dusenberry yourself!

A Smash.

Nobody was to blame, of course, for the serious disaster of Friday last on the Hudson River Railroad. Some few people were marred beyond recovery, and the brakeman of the freight train died of his injuries. Such casualties as that are, humanly speaking, certain to happen so many times in so many months. There seems to be a recurring tide in respect to forms of death and disaster as there is in respect to the things themselves. Nothing else than perfect machinery operated by infallible automatic management will ever make life and limb absolutely secure. Unceasing vigilance is only approximated in this world; it is never reached. Engineers will get careless, brakemen will get sleepy, switchmen will blunder, iron rails will spread unseen and axles will disintegrate unnoticed. And those calculating "experienced" fellows who get up the time-table will sometimes make a miniature mistake, just big enough to wreck a train. In the nicety of their calculations they seem to forget that they are making a schedule for the guidance of the salaried employes of a corporation, and that they are not timing the planets. If a beautifully balanced time-table were responded to by beautifully balanced men and metals all railroads could be safely run by mathematics, But trains will fall behind time, frost, snow, flood and fire will bother and disarrange the programme, until at last the worst smash of the season grows logically out of the nicest little dodge in the Superintendent's brain. Thus the freight train with which the swift Saratoga express collided was calculated to have passed the point where the slaughter happened just two minutes before the passenger coaches should arrive. It was further calculated that no freight train would ever leave the track at that particular "frog." The impossible thing happened. Hence death, pain, losses and lawsuits. Briefly, the Vanderbilt roads are pressed beyond their capacity with trains of all sorts; and so, between a public clamorous to be accommodated and a company anxious to make money, we expect periodical reports of just such smashes as that of Friday. Remedy? There is but one, i. e. the disposition of selfishness to dodge danger and avoid expense.

The Duke's Annuity.

It relieves our painful suspense to be told by cable that the desired annuity has been granted the Duke of Edinburgh. This young man wants to get married, and, from numberless examples before him, he has become aware that it cannot be done without money. That is with any reasonable hope of taking a tour and having a good time. So being a scion of royalty, and not a salaried clerk or a laboring tradesman, he is obliged to ask the parliamentary stewards to grant him the needed funds. In earlier ages kings, queens and "princes of the blood" were not restricted to the observance of any formula whatever when they wanted money. They levied a peremptory tax and collected with the sword. Now, however, the plebian populace have conceived a singular antipathy to being fleeced in that fashion.—Consequently there must intervene between the wish and the cash a slight formality of discussion and legal appropriation. A serious objection to this latter course in case of a royal Duke for instance, is, that it keeps him standing on one leg, as it were, until his inferiors have made up their minds what to do about it. Thanks to the loyalty of the committee to which the matter was referred, the paltry sum asked for was finally voted. Mr. Anderson, member for Glasgow, had the horribly bad taste to suggest a proviso of limitation, to the effect that if the matrimonially-inclined young duke should succeed by reason of his wife to the Grand Duchy of Saxe-Coburg the annuity should cease. We are gratified to relate that this matter-o'-moneyal Scotchman was obliged to withdraw his amendment under fire of hardly suppressed contempt. The little sum required to enable the juvenile duke to keep house comfortably is one hundred and twenty-five thousand dollars per annum. Any one will see that he couldn't very well get on with less. But, oh, the starving poor in London garrets, the hollow-cheeked operatives in Birmingham and Manchester factories, the small farmers scattered over the noble island who work other men's lands for a scanty living—what of them? Bah, let the reforming radicals look out for them and Sir Charles Dilke make speeches at them. Hurry up the nuptials, and then—

"On with the dance."

Grant.

The peripatetic head of this great and glorious republic, redolent with the stench of the back pay swindle, poor whiskey and bad cigars, was at Rhinecliff on Tuesday afternoon. He was, as usual drunk; indeed so under the influence of the ardent that his guardian, General Sharpe, prevailed upon him not to drink another drop. "You know," said Sharpe, "that if you drink any more, you won't be fit to be seen." "Yez; zas so," said our great ruler, and the twain, with two or three bull-pups at their heels embarked for Rondout on the tug "Sandy." Mayor Lindsley and Horatio Fowks, Esq., editor of The Freeman, received our noble President on board the tug. We always thought Horatio and the Mayor knew better than to be found in such company.—Rhinebeck Gazette.

Whatever may be President Grant's habits, whether it be true or false that he drinks, there was nothing in the facts of the occasion referred to above to justify the remarks of the Rhinebeck Gazette. Gen. Grant courteously returned the greetings extended to him by a numerous and reasonably enthusiastic crowd of people.

We do not know why the Gazette has selected Mr. Fowks of The Freeman to couple with Mayor Lindsley as the only party who received the President, when the delegation representing our people was large and composed of some of our most influential and most worthy citizens. But Mr. Fowks would esteem it much more truly a compliment to be counted ignorant if it be the part of sense to disregard the commonest instincts of hospitality or fail to remember the respect and loyalty which the purest patriotism demands shall be paid to the President of the United States. It seems to us that spirit must be very churlish and a prey to a too eager thirst for mean things to say, that could find nothing in a President's visit than what our neighbor has raked from the dregs of his imagination Even the Bedouin in his fiercest passion for plunder touches not the goods or life of the traveller who has eaten of his salt. And so we are glad to note the increasing disposition among public men who seek to make politics a generous strife for the accomplishment of the highest aims of statesmanship, to promptly accept the truces in the fight offered by these occasions.

But there were reasons why every American citizen should be glad to be found in any company that welcomes President Grant. We have alluded above to the claims the office itself has upon all of us. We esteem it one of the chief grounds for pride we Americans have in our country, that while Shahs and Emperors and Czars and Kings find it necessary to impress a sense of their dignity and importance with glittering ranks of soldiery and salvos of artillery and the display of liveried and obsequious attendants, the President cannot go anywhere in all this broad land, though mingling on the broadest plane of simple equality, but that the ready head of every true citizen instinctively bows respectfully and reverently to the Sovereignty of the Republic. And let us hope that the editor of the Rhinebeck Gazette will in the next visit of the President see something more than a dog-fight or a mayor and an editor, and that it will do something more than exhibit a disagreeable fungus of political strife, and extend the freedom of the city with hearty spirit unto the man who brought freedom to every village and hamlet in the land and secured it unto the nation for all time to come. Let us be something more than politicians—let us be men.

CURRENT TOPICS.

—The Chicago wheat "corner" is not yet broken. The gathered harvests will soon do the work for that ring of speculators.

—Political news from Saratoga indicates difficulty in the way of a cordial fusion between the Democrats and Liberals in this state next fall, unless a more conciliatory spirit than now exists prevails.

—The summer resort correspondence to newspapers is now immense. Like most miscellaneous reading considerable of it is sprightly written, but the great mass is heavy, and of chief interest to the friends of the writers or to a few immediate localities visited.

—The traffic in Italian children, by vagabonds of that nation, is awakening indignation in New York and elsewhere, and will be summarily broken up by the authorities.

—The farming out of infants by heartless, pleasure-seeking mothers, receives notice from time to time in cases of reported cruelty to the helpless beings thus ignored. Is there no way to put a legal stop to this abomination?

—Prize-fighters have been quiet for some time back. One buffer, Tom Allen by name, now turns up in St. Louis and offers to accommodate a certain party after he (Allen) has attended to another pugilist, McCoole. Muzzle such dogs by all means in hot weather, and lock them up summarily at any time when they become rabid.

—It is currently reported and believed that the pending nuptials between Queen Victoria's son, the Duke of Edinburgh, and a young Russian Princess is one of affection as well as interest. The modest stipend (?) of £25,000 voted by the British Parliament, with some show of opposition, ought to keep the young couple in "spending money" awhile at least.

—The charges against the New York Harbor Masters will likely be not proven through a plentiful coating of official whitewash. As a general thing a precious lot of swindling knaves fill those positions. It is high time the office is abolished, and New York merchants saved from indefinite extortions at the hands of these harpies and political hacks.

—The very last New York city sensation case comes from a Ludlow street tenement house where a young wife married to a comparatively old man deserts her husband for his nephew. Surprised by her spouse, she and her paramour attempted suicide; he succeeding, the other escaping the pistol shot fired, but only by mere accident. The parties are of German birth.

—The New York World of Saturday, in a double-leaded leader disclaims formal alliance with the Liberal Republicans and the Farmers' Granges; and asserts they must come to the Democrats, but not expect the Democratic party to go to them, and merge itself in a fusion of opposing elements. It further alleges that last fall's fusion was caused solely by hatred of Grant.

—Henry Watterson, that genial writer, in correspondence from London to his paper, the Louisville Courier-Journal, refers to our Minister's (General Schenck) connection with the Emma Mining scheme. Watterson, of opposing politics to Schenck, regards the latter as having been duped into the affair and as having lost money by it, through parties who knew his (Schenck's) extravagant habits, which latter ever exceed his means. Watterson, while thus extenuating in that instance, thinks this government ought to have an abler and more dignified representative at the Court of St. James.

—The Ohio Constitutional Convention Saturday, by a vote of 41 to 40, adopted a resolution for an adjournment of the convention from August 8 to December 2, to meet in Cincinnati.

ANOTHER PORTLAND DEVASTATED.

Half a Mile of Flames.

PORTLAND, Oregon, August 2, 4 P. M.—A fire commenced at 4:20 A. M., and spread over an entire block before a steamer got to work, and the Metropolitan Hotel was burned to the ground. The wind arose, and caused the fire to spread in all directions. When the Salem Fire Department arrived, seven blocks had been consumed. They stopped the further progress of the fire northward, but when all available assistance had arrived, there were only seven engines to subdue the fire, which was half a mile in length and a quarter of a mile wide. As fast as it was suppressed in one direction it broke out in another, while new fires, supposed to be the work of incendiaries, were continually being discovered. The fire only ceased at last for want of material. Among the losses are two engine houses, two sash factories, three foundries, four mills, five hotels, one hundred stores, two hundred and fifty dwellings. One hundred and fifty homeless families are now encamped in the public parks. The loss is estimated at two million, including five hundred thousand dollars damages caused by the removal of goods. Insurance three hundred thousand. Foreign companies losing heavily. The fire is now out, and regulars from Fort Vancouver guard the property.

A second fire was started six blocks from the original conflagration, but was soon extinguished. A supposed incendiary was arrested. Lemuel Lowenstein, of the firm of Emil Lowenstien & Co. was killed. One fireman was severely and Ed. Backensto, City Treasurer, dangerously injured.

In the first race Goldsmith Maid was the favorite in pools against field, but in the first heat she caught her hind foot in her fore quarter boot, bringing her to a dead standstill and leaving American Girl to finish the race, the Maid being declared distanced. Lucy won the race in three straight heats, all closely contested by American Girl, although the time was slow.

NEW YORK, August 3.—A prize fight between Siddons and Chambers took place this morning in the rear of Prospect Park Fair Grounds, Brooklyn, and resulted after fourteen rounds which occupied nearly one hour, in the defeat of Siddons, who, it is said, was not in good fighting condition. He was punished severely by Chambers, who displayed much more skill throughout the fight. Finally Siddons was knocked out of time, and his second threw up the sponge. The affair was kept very quiet, and was witnessed by a few New York and Brooklyn sports. The police were deceived by a rumor that the men were to meet at Gidding's Hotel, Coney Island.

GREAT EARTHQUAKE AT VALPARAISO!

PANAMA, August 3.—A great earthquake occurred at Valparaiso at 2:20 A. M. of July 8th. The shocks were worse than those of 1837. Great damage was done to houses and churches, though nothing compared with the last earthquake of San Salvador. Some lives were lost by falling walls, and one lady died from fear. The prisoners tried to break out of jail, but did not manage it. A fire began in the warehouse of Craig & Co., but was soon extinguished. In Stantago the shocks were severe, but no great damage was done beyond the breaking of mirrors and rending of some walls. Bells tolled of their own accord, and trains were stopped by large rocks thrown on the track.

A violent storm at Lima, July 9th, unroofed most of the houses in the city, causing damage of $500,000.

—Lord & Taylor, the well known New York merchants, have been victimized by a confidential clerk. $4,000 worth of purloined property has been recovered from pawn shops. The chief offender has been arrested. He asserts the old story of the seductive influences of wine and women.

—An overland traveller writes to a Milwaukee paper long complaints of the dangers incurred from gamblers, thieves, and desperadoes throughout the entire journey. He says: "Their operations cover the whole field; spotters dog the steps of persons leaving San Francisco, and by means of the telegraph and other agencies only known to the initiated, the desperadoes along the line are advised of any "game" that may be passing over the road. One gang, numbering from four to ten, usually rides only from one station to another, when they are relieved by others, one, however, remaining quietly on board all the time for observation."

—One of Mr. Gerrit Smith's "eccentricities" is chronicled in the following letter to The Utica Herald, from the Sisters of St. Francis, who have charge of St. Elizabeth's Hospital in that city: We hardly find words which fully express our gratitude at the receipt of a check for $500, bearing the signature of Gerrit Smith of Peterboro, N. Y. Such a recognition, from such a source, throws into welcome shadow many dark hours and discouraging circumstances. The money is donated toward the new hospital building.

—"John Paul," correspondent of the Tribune, is of course a nom de plume. Its owner is Charles H. Mr. Webb was in 1863 the editor and publisher of The Californian, the best literary paper ever published in California, and to which Bret Harte, Mark Twain and the lamented John Phœnix were at different times contributors, Mr. Webb recognizing in them the genius which has since made their names so famous. Webb is a wit of the first water.—Saratogain.

—Passengers on the New York express train, going west Wednesday evening, were not a little startled at a point between Little Falls and Utica. When this fast train was flying along at its greatest speed, the patent brakes were suddenly set. There was a concussion, showing that some obstruction had been met, and the cars came to a sudden stop. It was then learned that a team drawing a load of stone had stopped when crossing the track, the wagon having got fast in some way. The engineer saw it and whistled down brakes. The teamster saw the danger and drawing the bolt, released the horses from the wagon.—The next instant the vehicle was struck and its load of stones hurled in all directions. The wagon was, of course, demolished. No other damage resulted from the accident, as far as reported.

A Distinguished Visitor.

The prompt arrival of our English files enables us to put the freshest foreign news before our readers quite as soon as the New York papers furnish it, and often a day or two sooner, as they generally wait to have the news "hashed up" by their foreign correspondents. Among the fresh news and miscellanies of which we avail ourselves, this morning, we count as chief an announcement made by Jo Arch, the English laborer, in a speech at Newburgh on the 18th, that "if his life was 'spared until August, he should visit the states 'of America." But it is no holiday excursion that he contemplates. He further said, in a passage of extraordinary eloquence:—

If he found there a home for the agricultural laborers of England he should tell them so, but if he found that farmers in America were men who wanted both sides of the bargain, and that the crows were as black there as here, he should advise them to stay in England. If he found America was the true home for the working man, where the son of the poor man could sit down by the children of the rich, write on the same slate, and read out of the same book, and where they could have full electoral power, he would stand on her shores until he had drained the laboring serfs out of England, in order that they might settle in the fruitful field of America, with its ninety millions of acres yet untilled; and he would do this until the farmers of England were made to bite the dust, if they refused to treat their laborers like men. He hoped that before this time twelve months, to make the farmers of this country know the worth of a man. Although he was of humble birth, and had only been an agricultural laborer himself, he had English blood and an English heart and human feelings, and he would not see six hundred thousand tillers of the soil in a state of slavery, and mocked by being told they were free. He would traverse America from one end to the other if he lost his life in trying to rise the English laborer, and would die gladly if he could but bring him into a state of freedom.

Mr. Arch evidently hardly dreams of the prevalence of peasant-proprietorship in this country and we hope he will find other pleasant surprise of course. But the importance of this mission, in its possible effect on English immigration, can hardly be over-estimated. We can get along without a visit from Charles Reade, Wilkie Collins or even Spurgeon very well, if Jo Arch, the laborer, "Methody" preacher and labor-organizer, the possessor of the confidence of the farming population of England to a greater extent than any other living man, will deign to give us a visit. If he is favorably impressed with us, we shall witness such a tide of immigration of English farm-laborers, as we have never yet been able to attract.—Springfield Republican.

Railroads as Weather-Breeders.

OGDEN, U. T., June 29.—In view of the wonderful climatic changes now going on along the lines of the great railways crossing the plains, it is impossible to imagine a probable limit to the vast area which may here, within a few years, be deemed among the best portions of our country for the purposes of agriculture. The secret of this transformation from a desert to a fertile plain is contained in five words—the railroad has brought rain. No element was wanting in the earth itself, nor was aught in excess to enforce sterility, but everywhere there was drought.—In the hot dust nothing grew but stunted hardy grass and sage brush. All seemed desolation and utter hopelessness. Wherever irrigation was tried, its success exceeded the most sanguine expectations in developing the soil. No enthusiast dared, however, to dream of the possibility of artificial irrigation over all this enormous expanse. Rivers entering here would have been drunk up by the thirsty earth and sky long ere they could have reached its centre. Yet man's work has irrigated this land by an unexpected means. The railroad has brought rain. To the electrical influence of these long lines of iron between East and West, some attribute the change. By others it is affirmed that the effect has been produced by merely the displacement of the atmosphere, caused by the numerous heavy and swiftly rushing trains. Be the cause what i may, the fact remains the same—that, year by year, since the Union Pacific Railroad has been operated through, the rainfall has steadily increased, until this season it has become, so far at least as the road is concerned, a decided nuisance. Who of the projectors of this road ever imagined that a time would come when its trains would be delayed in the middle of the plains by the overflow of water from violent rain-storms, covering the track, and in places even sweeping it away. Such has, however, been the fact this spring. Trains have been as much as twelve and even fifteen hours behind time from this cause alone. The result of this rain-fall is already to be seen in the settlement of the country along the route. When first the Union Pacific was open to travel, one would ride all the long day through without seeing a human habitation, except at the miserable stations where trains were "side tracked," coal taken on, or water drawn from wells of great depth. Now, as far west as Cheyenne, houses are scattered all along, fields are seen in a flourishing state of cultivation, and numerous herds of cattle prove how well the graziers have found the country adapted to their wants.—Correspondence of The Graphic.

Sunlight Versus Cholera Poison.

Dr. T. S. Bell, of Louisville, has made a careful study of the cholera since it visited that city, and finds that not a single case has occurred where the cause was in action. Why the sunbeams should have the effect of neutralizing the causes of the disease he is unable to explain, but he is sure of the fact. This is a law of the poison from which there is no departure. Hundreds were exposed in that city in the day time, but no case occurred from the exposure. He says: "I never saw a case of cholera acquired without sleep at night where the cause existed; and, I add, that in a multitude of inquiries on the subject, I have never heard of a case of the kind. The fact that cholera cannot be acquired except by sleeping at night where the cause exists, constitutes an element of safety to the people infinitely beyond all other means known to me. I have never seen it fail a single time in forty years of extensive use. I have seen on many occasions, when basement stories of dwellings were much more common than they are now cholera in the basement stories, while all the other stories were free from disease of any kind. I knew of a number of deaths from cholera in the lower stories of houses." This is a fact of great importance which it would be well for our people to bear in mind.

An Incident of the Train Robbery.

The Des Moines, Iowa, Register says that as soon as the train which was thrown from the track by the masked highwaymen stopped, a brakeman who was on the rear car, started off on the run. Arriving at Anita, four or five miles distant, he informed the citizens of that place that the train had been thrown off the track by some fifty to seventy-five robbers, who were murdering and robbing all the passengers. The men of the place were at once aroused, and arming themselves with revolvers, rifles, shot-guns and clubs, they boarded the train ordered up from Atlantic when it reached that place, and started out determined to rescue survivors if any there were. All circumstances considered, it was a brave deed.

AYER'S HAIR VIGOR,

FOR RESTORING GRAY HAIR

To its Natural Vitality and Color.

Advancing years, sickness, care, disappointment, and hereditary predisposition, all turn the hair gray, and either of them incline it to shed prematurely.

AYER'S HAIR VIGOR by long and extensive use, has proven that it stops the falling of the hair immediately often renews the growth, and always surely restores its color, when faded or gray It stimulates the nutritive organs to healthy activity, and preserves both the hair and its beauty.—Thus brashy weak or sickly hair becomes glossy, pliable and strengthened; lost hair regrows with lively expression; falling hair is checked and stablished; thin hair thickens; and faded or gray hair resume their original color. Its operation is sure and harmless. It cures dandruff, heals all humors, and keeps the scalp cool, clean and soft—under which conditions, diseases of the scalp are impossible.

As a dressing for ladies' hair, the VIGOR is praised for its grateful and agreeable perfume, and valued for the soft lustre and richness of tone it imparts.

Temptation.

The Middletown Mercury speaks of the superlative music to be heard in Dr. Seward's church in that village, in terms of high appreciation, then thrills us by saying that "The solo, sung by Mrs. Henry L. Adams, was most correctly and beautifully rendered, and if listened to elsewhere than in a house of worship, would have been followed by the applause which it seemed difficult for the admiring audience to repress." Will the Mercury man please consider us as finding it quite impossible to repress the applause that wells up within us, not because of the solo, but because of his own most admirable way of praising the solo? Mrs. Adams without question merited the applause which "the admiring audience found it so difficult to repress," yet we rejoice that they did repress it nevertheless. Two desirable attributes of the Middletown people are brought before us by this incident in a most cheering way; first their possession of capital singers, and second a powerful restraint upon their feelings in a house of worship. Mercurial this, but not explosive.

Another Portland in Ashes.

The telegraph this morning apprises us of another fearful visitation by fire, in which the Portland conflagration of the Atlantic coast finds its counterpart in its devastated namesake on the Pacific. For while the loss foots up only two millions it is relatively as large as that of the New England city. Under a high wind through all of Saturday there rushed all over the city of Portland in Oregon a flame started at four o'clock in the morning by hellish incendiaries, who not satisfied with starting kept it going by building new fires at different points. At one time the fire raged for half a mile in one direction and a quarter in another, and though help from another city was received it only stopped when there was naught for it to feed upon. It leaves in its track the ashes of two engine houses, two sash factories, three foundries, four mills, five hotels, one hundred stores and two hundred and fifty dwellings. One hundred and fifty families have sought refuge in churches and encamp in the park for lack of roofs to cover their heads. When we consider that Portland has only 8,293 inhabitants, or three thousand less than Rondout, it will be seen that this is relatively a very large conflagration. An appeal for aid is made, to which a ready response should be received from all the land.

Dusenberry.

We take advantage of the first opportunity to call the attention of the readers of The Freeman to the advertisement of Dusenberry. It is published in the Liberty Register, and beginneth in the following solemn and convincing way: "It is admitted that we not only love our wives, but also our children, brothers and sisters. They die. We want a suitable coffin or casket for the jewel, and a tender and careful hand to take it up and bear it to its last resting place. Who will do it for us." Breaking the silent pause that succeeds this doleful question, the voice of the helpful Dusenberry rises on the air. He assures our stricken souls that he will do it.—He is provided with all accessories, and is waiting at all times, as his inimitable advertisement proceeds to say "A good hearse and peerless team of horses in waiting at all times to receive or deliver a corpse at the railroad station, or go elsewhere as far as human voice is heard or human track is run." We are satisfied. Dusenberry will not fail us. Whether we come to the station unexpectedly dead from collision, or by appointment, Dusenberry will be there with his "peerless team of horses." But in one thing put us in advance of the fact. After his distinguished services to defunct humanity when this sweet and smiling undertaker pays the debt of nature, who will be found competent to bury him? Ah, Dusenberry yourself!

A Smash.

Nobody was to blame, of course, for the serious disaster of Friday last on the Hudson River Railroad. Some few people were marred beyond recovery, and the brakeman of the freight train died of his injuries. Such casualties as that are, humanly speaking, certain to happen so many times in so many months. There seems to be a recurring tide in respect to forms of death and disaster as there is in respect to the things themselves. Nothing else than perfect machinery operated by infallible automatic management will ever make life and limb absolutely secure. Unceasing vigilance is only approximated in this world; it is never reached. Engineers will get careless, brakemen will get sleepy, switchmen will blunder, iron rails will spread unseen and axles will disintegrate unnoticed. And those calculating "experienced" fellows who get up the timetable will sometimes make a miniature mistake, just big enough to wreck a train. In the nicety of their calculations they seem to forget that they are making a schedule for the guidance of the salaried employes of a corporation, and that they are not timing the planets. If a beautifully balanced time-table were responded to by beautifully balanced men and metals all railroads could be safely run by mathematics. But trains will fall behind time, frost, snow, flood and fire will bother and disarrange the programme, until at last the worst smash of the season grows logically out of the nicest little dodge in the Superintendent's brain. Thus the freight train with which the swift Saratoga express collided was calculated to have passed the point where the slaughter happened just two minutes before the passenger coaches should arrive. It was further calculated that no freight train would ever leave the track at that particular "frog." The impossible thing happened. Hence death, pain, losses and lawsuits. Briefly, the Vanderbilt roads are pressed beyond their capacity with trains of all sorts; and so, between a public clamorous to be accommodated and a company anxious to make money, we expect periodical reports of just such smashes as that of Friday. Remedy? There is but one, i. e. the disposition of selfishness to dodge danger and avoid expense.

The Duke's Annuity.

It relieves our painful suspense to be told by cable that the desired annuity has been granted the Duke of Edinburgh. This young man wants to get married, and, from numberless examples before him, he has become aware that it cannot be done without money. That is with any reasonable hope of taking a tour and having a good time. So being a scion of royalty, and not a salaried clerk or a laboring tradesman, he is obliged to ask the parliamentary stewards to grant him the needed funds. In earlier ages kings, queens and "princes of the blood" were not restricted to the observance of any formula whatever when they wanted money. They levied a peremptory tax and collected with the sword. Now, however, the plebian populace have conceived a singular antipathy to being fleeced in that fashion.—Consequently there must intervene between the wish and the cash a slight formality of discussion and legal appropriation. A serious objection to this latter course in case of a royal Duke for instance, is, that it keeps him standing on one leg, as it were, until his inferiors have made up their minds what to do about it. Thanks to the loyalty of the committee to which the matter was referred, the paltry sum asked for was finally voted. Mr. Anderson, member for Glasgow, had the horribly bad taste to suggest a proviso of limitation, to the effect that if the matrimonially-inclined young duke should succeed by reason of his wife to the Grand Duchy of Saxe-Coburg the annuity should cease. We are gratified to relate that this matter-o'-moneyal Scotchman was obliged to withdraw his amendment under fire of hardly suppressed contempt. The little sum required to enable the juvenile duke to keep house comfortably is one hundred and twenty-five thousand dollars per annum. Any one will see that he couldn't very well get on with less. But, oh, the starving poor in London garrets, the hollow-cheeked operatives in Birmingham and Manchester factories, the small farmers scattered over the noble island who work other men's lands for a scanty living—what of them? Bah, let the reforming radicals look out for them and Sir Charles Dilke make speeches at them. Hurry up the nuptials, and then—

"On with the dance."

Grant.

The peripatetic head of this great and glorious republic, redolent with the stench of the back pay swindle, poor whiskey and bad cigars, was at Rhinecliff on Tuesday afternoon. He was, as usual drunk; indeed so under the influence of the ardent that his guardian, General Sharpe, prevailed upon him not to drink another drop. "You know," said Sharpe, "that if you drink any more, you won't be fit to be seen." "Yez; zas so," said our great ruler, and the twain, with two or three bull-pups at their heels embarked for Rondout on the tug "Sandy." Mayor Lindsley and Horatio Fowks, Esq., editor of The Freeman, received our noble President on board the tug. We always thought Horatio and the Mayor knew better than to be found in such company.—Rhinebeck Gazette.

Whatever may be President Grant's habits, whether it be true or false that he drinks, there was nothing in the facts of the occasion referred to above to justify the remarks of the Rhinebeck Gazette. Gen. Grant courteously returned the greetings extended to him by a numerous and reasonably enthusiastic crowd of people.

We do not know why the Gazette has selected Mr. Fowks of The Freeman to couple with Mayor Lindsley as the only party who received the President, when the delegation representing our people was large and composed of some of our most influential and most worthy citizens. But Mr. Fowks would esteem it much more truly a compliment to be counted ignorant if it be the part of sense to disregard the commonest instincts of hospitality or fail to remember the respect and loyalty which the purest patriotism demands shall be paid to the President of the United States. It seems to us that spirit must be very churlish and a prey to a too eager thirst for mean things to say, that could find nothing in a President's visit than what our neighbor has raked from the dregs of his imagination Even the Bedouin in his fiercest passion for plunder touches not the goods or life of the traveller who has eaten of his salt. And so we are glad to note the increasing disposition among public men who seek to make politics a generous strife for the accomplishment of the highest aims of statesmanship, to promptly accept the truces in the fight offered by these occasions.

But there were reasons why every American citizen should be glad to be found in any company that welcomes President Grant. We have alluded above to the claims the office itself has upon all of us. We esteem it one of the chief grounds for pride we Americans have in our country, that while Shahs and Emperors and Czars and Kings find it necessary to impress a sense of their dignity and importance with glittering ranks of soldiery and salvos of artillery and the display of liveried and obsequious attendants, the President cannot go anywhere in all this broad land, though mingling on the broadest plane of simple equality, but that the ready head of every true citizen instinctively bows respectfully and reverently to the Sovereignty of the Republic. And let us hope that the editor of the Rhinebeck Gazette will in the next visit of the President see something more than a dog-fight or a mayor and an editor, and that it will do something more than exhibit a disagreeable fungus of political strife, and extend the freedom of the city with hearty spirit unto the man who brought freedom to every village and hamlet in the land and secured it unto the nation for all time to come. Let us be something more than politicians—let us be men.

—The Chicago wheat "corner" is not yet broken. The gathered harvests will soon do the work for that ring of speculators.

—Political news from Saratoga indicates difficulty in the way of a cordial fusion between the Democrats and Liberals in this state next fall, unless a more conciliatory spirit than now exists prevails.

—The summer resort correspondence to newspapers is now immense. Like most miscellaneous reading considerable of it is sprightly written, but the great mass is heavy, and of chief interest to the friends of the writers or to a few immediate localities visited.

—The traffic in Italian children, by vagabonds of that nation, is awakening indignation in New York and elsewhere, and will be summarily broken up by the authorities.

—The farming out of infants by heartless, pleasure-seeking mothers, receives notice from time to time in cases of reported cruelty to the helpless beings thus ignored. Is there no way to put a legal stop to this abomination?

—Prize-fighters have been quiet for some time back. One buffer, Tom Allen by name, now turns up in St. Louis and offers to accommodate a certain party after he (Allen) has attended to another pugilist, McCoole. Muzzle such dogs by all means in hot weather, and lock them up summarily at any time when they become rabid.

—It is currently reported and believed that the pending nuptials between Queen Victoria's son, the Duke of Edinburgh, and a young Russian Princess is one of affection as well as interest. The modest stipend (?) of £25,000 voted by the British Parliament, with some show of opposition, ought to keep the young couple in "spending money" awhile at least.

—The charges against the New York Harbor Masters will likely be not proven through a plentiful coating of official whitewash. As a general thing a precious lot of swindling knaves fill those positions. It is high time the office is abolished, and New York merchants saved from indefinite extortions at the hands of these harpies and political hacks.

—The very last New York city sensation case comes from a Ludlow street tenement house where a young wife married to a comparatively old man deserts her husband for his nephew. Surprised by her spouse, she and her paramour attempted suicide; he succeeding, the other escaping the pistol shot fired, but only by mere accident. The parties are of German birth.

—The New York World of Saturday, in a double-leaded leader disclaims formal alliance with the Liberal Republicans and the Farmers' Granges; and asserts they must come to the Democrats, but not expect the Democratic party to go to them, and merge itself in a fusion of opposing elements. It further alleges that last fall's fusion was caused solely by hatred of Grant.

—Henry Watterson, that genial writer, in correspondence from London to his paper, the Louisville Courier-Journal, refers to our Minister's (General Schenck) connection with the Emma Mining scheme. Watterson, of opposing politics to Schenck, regards the latter as having been duped into the affair and as having lost money by it, through parties who knew his (Schenck's) extravagant habits, which latter ever exceed his means. Watterson, while thus extenuating in that instance, thinks this government ought to have an abler and more dignified representative at the Court of St. James.

—The Ohio Constitutional Convention Saturday, by a vote of 41 to 40, adopted a resolution for an adjournment of the convention from August 8 to December 2, to meet in Cincinnati.

Logical Thiers.

PARIS, August 3.—Ex-President Thiers yesterday, in course of a reply to Madame Koechling, who presented him with a gift from the ladies of Mulhouse, declared that the attitude of France towards foreign powers should be strictly neutral. The difficulties in Spain were purely internal. If France claimed inviolability of her own territory she ought to respect that of Spain.

ANOTHER PORTLAND DEVASTATED.

Half a Mile of Flames.

PORTLAND, Oregon, August 2, 4 P. M.—A fire commenced at 4:20 A. M., and spread over an entire block before a steamer got to work, and the Metropolitan Hotel was burned to the ground. The wind arose, and caused the fire to spread in all directions. When the Salem Fire Department arrived, seven blocks had been consumed. They stopped the further progress of the fire northward, but when all available assistance had arrived, there were only seven engines to subdue the fire, which was half a mile in length and a quarter of a mile wide. As fast as it was suppressed in one direction it broke out in another, while new fires, supposed to be the work of incendiaries, were continually being discovered. The fire only ceased at last for want of material. Among the losses are two engine houses, two sash factories, three foundries, four mills, five hotels, one hundred stores, two hundred and fifty dwellings. One hundred and fifty homeless families are now encamped in the public parks. The loss is estimated at two million, including five hundred thousand dollars damages caused by the removal of goods. Insurance three hundred thousand. Foreign companies losing heavily. The fire is now out, and regulars from Fort Vancouver guard the property.

A second fire was started six blocks from the original conflagration, but was soon extinguished. A supposed incendiary was arrested. Lemuel Lowenstein, of the firm of Emil Lowenstien & Co. was killed. One fireman was severely and Ed. Backensto, City Treasurer, dangerously injured.

PORTLAND, Aug. 2.—Two other men were caught this afternoon attempting to set fire to a house on Third street. The churches have been converted into dwelling-houses. The Common Council issued food tickets for the destitute, and have called for aid from other cities.

In the first race Goldsmith Maid was the favorite in pools against field, but in the first heat she caught her hind foot in her fore quarter boot, bringing her to a dead standstill and leaving American Girl to finish the race, the Maid being declared distanced. Lucy won the race in three straight heats, all closely contested by American Girl, although the time was slow.

NEW YORK, August 3.—A prize fight between Siddons and Chambers took place this morning in the rear of Prospect Park Fair Grounds, Brooklyn, and resulted after fourteen rounds which occupied nearly one hour, in the defeat of Siddons, who, it is said, was not in good fighting condition. He was punished severely by Chambers, who displayed much more skill throughout the fight. Finally Siddons was knocked out of time, and his second threw up the sponge. The affair was kept very quiet, and was witnessed by a few New York and Brooklyn sports. The police were deceived by a rumor that the men were to meet at Gidding's Hotel, Coney Island.

GREAT EARTHQUAKE AT VALPARAISO!

PANAMA, August 3.—A great earthquake occurred at Valparaiso at 2:20 A. M. of July 8th. The shocks were worse than those of 1837. Great damage was done to houses and churches, though nothing compared with the last earthquake of San Salvador. Some lives were lost by falling walls, and one lady died from fear. The prisoners tried to break out of jail, but did not manage it. A fire began in the warehouse of Craig & Co., but was soon extinguished. In Stantago the shocks were severe, but no great damage was done beyond the breaking of mirrors and rending of some walls. Bells tolled of their own accord, and trains were stopped by large rocks thrown on the track.

A violent storm at Lima, July 9th, unroofed most of the houses in the city, causing damage of $500,000.

—Emancipation Day was celebrated by a pic-nic at the Brooklyn Myrtle avenue Park, which was attended by a large number of colored citizens.

—Gold has been discovered by some army officers in Alaska. Should this be so, the development of that far-off region will be greatly hastened.

—The old Gas-light Company and the new one, at Albany, whose works were recently put in operation, have agreed on a scale of prices and divided the city into two equal districts, each taking one district. Higher prices for gas are looked for.

—Lord & Taylor, the well known New York merchants, have been victimized by a confidential clerk. $4,000 worth of purloined property has been recovered from pawn shops. The chief offender has been arrested. He asserts the old story of the seductive influences of wine and women.

—An overland traveller writes to a Milwaukee paper long complaints of the dangers incurred from gamblers, thieves, and desperadoes throughout the entire journey. He says: "Their operations cover the whole field; spotters dog the steps of persons leaving San Francisco, and by means of the telegraph and other agencies only known to the initiated, the desperadoes along the line are advised of any "game" that may be passing over the road. One gang, numbering from four to ten, usually rides only from one station to another, when they are relieved by others, one, however, remaining quietly on board all the time for observation."

MISCELLANEOUS ITEMS.

—It is reported that the cholera in Missouri has spent its force.

—Mr. Joseph Jefferson is now in England. He is to appear in New York at Booth's in September.

—Providence R. I., wants a game law enacted for the protection of clams. Are clams game?

—Mme. Nilsson has been invited and will probably spend a few days at Lake Mahopac, before the Strakosch opera season begins in New York.

—Playing-cards with mourning borders are said to have come into fashion in Tennessee since the advent of cholera.

—California announces the discovery of a spring of "natural lemonade;" but a local chemist says it's nothing but lime-water.

—The most unpopular man in Virginia is one who has made the accidental discovery that kerosene is as efficacious as whiskey to cure rattlesnake bites.

—Three women have gone crazy in Paris after sight of the Shah's diamonds. One of them has committed suicide because the festivities are at an end.

—A Syracuse lad had his clothes taken completely off by passing through a space of six inches on a belt between the wheel and the ceiling.

—The Times says that two Polanders were married in Amenia on Sunday evening; and until early Monday morning, they, with a large number of their friends, enjoyed a ceremonial dance, which is similar to an Indian war dance.

—An exchange remarks, "Isn't it delightful to awake at six o'clock in the morning from a refreshing slumber under a mosquito net, and discover about a dozen of those hungry fellows perched upon and around the enclosure, with eyes moist with tears, with long, lean stomachs, too hoarse to sing, and with just strength enough to curse the ingenuity of man."

—One of Mr. Gerrit Smith's "eccentricities" is chronicled in the following letter to The Utica Herald, from the Sisters of St. Francis, who have charge of St. Elizabeth's Hospital in that city: We hardly find words which fully express our gratitude at the receipt of a check for $500, bearing the signature of Gerrit Smith of Peterboro, N. Y. Such a recognition, from such a source, throws into welcome shadow many dark hours and discouraging circumstances. The money is donated toward the new hospital building.

—"John Paul," correspondent of the Tribune, is of course a nom de plume. Its owner is Charles H. Webb, the well known author of that capital satire published a few years ago entitled "Liffith Lank." Mr. Webb was in 1863 the editor and publisher of The Californian, the best literary paper ever published in California, and to which Bret Harte, Mark Twain and the lamented John Phœnix were at different times contributors, Mr. Webb recognizing in them the genius which has since made their names so famous. Webb is a wit of the first water.—Saratogain.

—Passengers on the New York express train, going west Wednesday evening, were not a little startled at a point between Little Falls and Utica. When this fast train was flying along at its greatest speed, the patent brakes were suddenly set. There was a concussion, showing that some obstruction had been met, and the cars came to a sudden stop. It was then learned that a team drawing a load of stone had stopped when crossing the track, the wagon having got fast in some way. The engineer saw it and whistled down brakes. The teamster saw the danger and drawing the bolt, released the horses from the wagon.—The next instant the vehicle was struck and its load of stones hurled in all directions. The wagon was, of course, demolished. No other damage resulted from the accident, as far as reported.

A Distinguished Visitor.

The prompt arrival of our English files enables us to put the freshest foreign news before our readers quite as soon as the New York papers furnish it, and often a day or two sooner, as they generally wait to have the news "hashed up" by their foreign correspondents. Among the fresh news and miscellanies of which we avail ourselves, this morning, we count as chief an announcement made by Jo Arch, the English laborer, in a speech at Newburgh on the 18th, that "if his life was 'spared until August, he should visit the states 'of America." But it is no holiday excursion that he contemplates. He further said, in a passage of extraordinary eloquence:—

If he found there a home for the agricultural laborers of England he should tell them so, but if he found that farmers in America were men who wanted both sides of the bargain, and that the crows were as black there as here, he should advise them to stay in England. If he found America was the true home for the working man, where the son of the poor man could sit down by the children of the rich, write on the same slate, and read out of the same book, and where they could have full electoral power, he would stand on her shores until he had drained the laboring serfs out of England, in order that they might settle in the fruitful field of America, with its ninety millions of acres yet untilled; and he would do this until the farmers of England were made to bite the dust, if they refused to treat their laborers like men. He hoped that before this time twelve months, to make the farmers of this country know the worth of a man. Although he was of humble birth, and had only been an agricultural laborer himself, he had English blood and an English heart and human feelings, and he would not see six hundred thousand tillers of the soil in a state of slavery, and mocked by being told they were free. He would traverse America from one end to the other if he lost his life in trying to rise the English laborer, and would die gladly if he could but bring him into a state of freedom.

Mr. Arch evidently hardly dreams of the prevalence of peasant-proprietorship in this country and we hope he will find other pleasant surprise of course. But the importance of this mission, in its possible effect on English immigration, can hardly be over-estimated. We can get along without a visit from Charles Reade, Wilkie Collins or even Spurgeon very well, if Jo Arch, the laborer, "Methody" preacher and labor-organizer, the possessor of the confidence of the farming population of England to a greater extent than any other living man, will deign to give us a visit. If he is favorably impressed with us, we shall witness such a tide of immigration of English farm-laborers, as we have never yet been able to attract.—Springfield Republican.

Railroads as Weather-Breeders.

OGDEN, U. T., June 29.—In view of the wonderful climatic changes now going on along the lines of the great railways crossing the plains, it is impossible to imagine a probable limit to the vast area which may here, within a few years, be deemed among the best portions of our country for the purposes of agriculture. The secret of this transformation from a desert to a fertile plain is contained in five words—the railroad has brought rain. No element was wanting in the earth itself, nor was aught in excess to enforce sterility, but everywhere there was drought.—In the hot dust nothing grew but stunted hardy grass and sage brush. All seemed desolation and utter hopelessness. Wherever irrigation was tried, its success exceeded the most sanguine expectations in developing the soil. No enthusiast dared, however, to dream of the possibility of artificial irrigation over all this enormous expanse. Rivers entering here would have been drunk up by the thirsty earth and sky long ere they could have reached its centre. Yet man's work has irrigated this land by an unexpected means. The railroad has brought rain. To the electrical influence of these long lines of iron between East and West, some attribute the change. By others it is affirmed that the effect has been produced by merely the displacement of the atmosphere, caused by the numerous heavy and swiftly rushing trains. Be the cause what it may, the fact remains the same—that, year by year, since the Union Pacific Railroad has been operated through, the rainfall has steadily increased, until this season it has become, so far at least as the road is concerned, a decided nuisance. Who of the projectors of this road ever imagined that a time would come when its trains would be delayed in the middle of the plains by the overflow of water from violent rain-storms, covering the track, and in places even sweeping it away. Such has, however, been the fact this spring. Trains have been as much as twelve and even fifteen hours behind time from this cause alone. The result of this rain-fall is already to be seen in the settlement of the country along the route. When first the Union Pacific was open to travel, one would ride all the long day through without seeing a human habitation, except at the miserable stations where trains were "side tracked," coal taken on, or water drawn from wells of great depth. Now, as far west as Cheyenne, houses are scattered all along, fields are seen in a flourishing state of cultivation, and numerous herds of cattle prove how well the graziers have found the country adapted to their wants.—Correspondence of The Graphic.

Sunlight Versus Cholera Poison.

Dr. T. S. Bell, of Louisville, has made a careful study of the cholera since it visited that city, and finds that not a single case has occurred where the cause was in action. Why the sunbeams should have the effect of neutralizing the causes of the disease he is unable to explain, but he is sure of the fact. This is a law of the poison from which there is no departure. Hundreds were exposed in that city in the day time, but no case occurred from the exposure. He says: "I never saw a case of cholera acquired without sleep at night where the cause existed; and, I add, that in a multitude of inquiries on the subject, I have never heard of a case of the kind. The fact that cholera cannot be acquired except by sleeping at night where the cause exists, constitutes an element of safety to the people infinitely beyond all other means known to me. I have never seen it fail a single time in forty years of extensive use. I have seen on many occasions, when basement stories of dwellings were much more common than they are now cholera in the basement stories, while all the other stories were free from disease of any kind. I knew of a number of deaths from cholera in the lower stories of houses." This is a fact of great importance which it would be well for our people to bear in mind.

An Incident of the Train Robbery.

The Des Moines, Iowa, Register says that as soon as the train which was thrown from the track by the masked highwaymen stopped, a brakeman who was on the rear car, started off on the run. Arriving at Anita, four or five miles distant, he informed the citizens of that place that the train had been thrown off the track by some fifty to seventy-five robbers, who were murdering and robbing all the passengers. The men of the place were at once aroused, and arming themselves with revolvers, rifles, shot-guns and clubs, they boarded the train ordered up from Atlantic when it reached that place, and started out determined to rescue survivors if any there were. All circumstances considered, it was a brave deed.

Its operation is sure and harmless. It cures dandruff, heals all humors, and keeps the scalp cool, clean and soft—under which conditions, diseases of the scalp are impossible.

—The tenacity of flies in biting is now only equalled by their rapid increase.

—It was rather dull along the creek docks Saturday.

—Important changes in the ferry-boat time-table. See correct list on local page.

—We wonder if Sunday School pic-nics, when announced, don't temporarily increase the attendance of scholars.

—Ninety of the Baldwin's passengers last trip but one took the New York, Kingston & Syracuse cars on reaching here.

—The charter members of the G. A. R. are requested to meet at the office of Dr. A. T. Douglas on Friday evening, for organization.

—From the showers of Sunday the ground was made wet at a greater distance beneath the surface than at any time since May last.

—Don't forget the excursion of the German street Lutheran Sabbath School to-day. Music by Goeller's Band. Remember there will be no strong liquors sold on the boat.

—The trustees of the African M. E. Zion Church are trying to raise money enough to put their church building in good repair, of which it stands greatly in need.

—The weather was disagreeably hot on Sunday morning, church-going people sweltering in the sticky atmosphere. But a couple of glorious showers iced the air in the afternoon, and it was very pleasant.

—The Wallkill Valley Railway office has been furnished with a broad-gauge, unabridged dictionary of the Webster pattern. The hands are searching its pages for the words "suitable depot" at Kingston.

—We learn that just after the shower on Sunday a quantity of rock fell into the quarry of the Newark Lime & Cement Manufacturing Company; but our intelligence came at too late an hour for us to learn particulars.

—The excursion of the Rondout M. E. Sunday School takes place to-morrow, 5th inst. The destination is a grove at Coxsackie, which is furnished with swings and is in every way finely adapted to pic-nicking purposes.—Burger's Band will furnish the music, and a fine time is anticipated. The scholars will assemble at the lecture room at quarter before 8 o'clock.

—A man came in Peter Weaver's saloon on Saturday and showed the oldest watch in town. It was built in 1605, and hence is 268 years. Upon its back it had a picture of Jacob and Rebecca, and also the sun, moon and stars.—In those early days the sun appears to have been more regular than at present, as he is set down to rise exactly at six o'clock every time. The watch is a curious specimen of jewelry architecture, and might have been used by Noah, as it looks sufficiently ancient.

—One of our German friends went into one of our barber shops between five and six o'clock on Sunday morning to have a shave. After getting shaved he walked off and meeting some friends, one of them accosted him thusly, "Say, Fritz, where did you get shaved?" Fritz replied, "Up in the little shop on Garden street." "Well," said the friend, "you only got shaved half," so Fritz went back and demanded five cents. "Vat for," says the barber. "Because you only shaved me half." The barber looked at Fritz to see if he was in earnest, and perceiving that he had left one side unshaved, said, "You yoost set down an' I'll make the rest off yoost so quick as never vas," after which Fritz went off happy.

The Soothing Summer Rain.

The heavy showers of Sunday afternoon soaked into the ground to the depth of about three inches, reaching the roots of almost every kind of garden truck. The dust was laid, and the atmosphere made pleasently cool, beside the landscape was freshened up until the green was almost as bright and vivid as in early June.

In the Field for Judge.

The following Democrats are now in the field for Supreme Court Judge, this fall:—Jacob H. Clute, Peter S. Danforth, Charles Holmes, of Schoharie, and John H. Colby, of Troy. Nice office that—fourteen years at $7,000 a year; total, $98,000. In addition to this is $500 a year for traveling expenses. This gives us a grand total for fourteen years of $105,000. As all our Judges travel as dead heads, on all our railroads, it will be seen that the $500 a year mentioned above is just so much clean cash added to the salary.—Albany Post.

Personal.

Rev. W. H. Mickle of the Second M. E. Church is at Scotch Bush, Orange County, spending a short vacation.

John R. Stebbins & Co. is going off to the sea-girt shore where clams grow and thrive. We pity the clams.

H. M. Beuell and wife left the city last night with the Baldwin for Long Branch, Ocean Grove and Shark River, where they will spend two weeks along the salt water.

A Busy Person.

About the busiest person we know of is Charlie Anderson, the steward of the Mary Powell, and he is about as good natured as he is busy. From five o'clock in the morning until the steamer reaches her wharf in this city at night, Charlie is literally on his feet. He not only has the tables and marketing to attend to, but helps collect tickets at the gang-way, and is always ready to escort a lady on shore and find her friends, or get her a carriage with the greatest good nature; he has a pleasant word or a smile for every one, and such a man is a pleasant chap to meet.

A Brave Policeman?

A disgraceful row occurred on Division street, Sunday afternoon, between two drunken men. After pounding each other for some time, they were finally parted by some bystanders. About this time, one of the "city's brave defenders," Patrick Ryan by name, appeared on the scene, and after inquiring and being informed what the row was, he proceeded to the seat of war, and after parleying a while with one of the combatants he walked him up Mill street and let him go, and walked off. About five minutes later, this man again appeared on the scene and proceeded to kick up another muss, when Mr. Ryan again took him in charge and walked him around to Lackawanna street liquor store, and again left him to his meditations. Is there a duplicate of Officer Myer handy?

Beautiful Effects.

There were some beautiful effects produced by the shower which occurred about 7 o'clock last Sunday evening. There were two rainbows, one of them vividly brilliant in color, that spanned the sky from the southern to the north-eastern horizan, and the setting sun produced grand hues on the Catskills, while the falling rain-drops appeared in the sunlight very like snow flakes. The entire landscape, as seen from the Weinberg for a few moments, wore an aspect that no fairy land ever imagined could approach in loveliness. Mountains, plains, and river were clothed in the colors which only the Great Creator can spread over the beautiful land in which we live.

RETURN OF THE MISSING BAKER.

He Goes to Ferry Street via Chicago.

Some three weeks ago we noted in these columns the sudden disappearance of Mr. Phfromer, a baker on Division street. The last seen of him he left the bakery clad in a linen coat and pants, the former of which he had just caught up from the counter as he went out, he said, to pay $600, which he had with him, to A. S. Staples. The baker returned not to his shop, and inquiry failed to elicit any trace of his whereabouts; and as week after week passed on no word came from him, and at last Phfromer was given up for lost.

But on Sunday as his little girl was standing on the doorstep she looked down the street and there was Phfromer, but no linen coat hung pendent from his sweating, fat shoulders; but with a cloth suit and a carpet-bag he stalked gloomily up the street toward his little bake-shop. He turned neither to the right nor the left. He minded not the hoodlums scratching up the mud in the gutters, nor did he stay to gaze upon the Opera House transparency, nor yet did he ask the Mansion House landlord wherefore he kept that flag flying when Grant had left three days ago. In fact nothing secured his attention, not even the little Fifteenth who sat on the curbstone playing Yankee Doodle on a jewsharp, though even a little baker who had just run out three weeks ago with $600 to pay a little bill, might have stopped to see how the little ebony perked his head one side, and screwed up his lips, and crooked his elbows to get around the turns of that tune. No, he bestowed not even one kick upon that urchin, but pegged away up the hill until he reached his store door, into which he stalked with the grim solemnity of a man just returned from his own funeral.

His little child thereupon gathered around him, and mounting his knee inquired where he had been, and what he went for, and what he came back for, and where his linen coat was, and a few hundred other harmless little inquiries whose purport our reporter failed to learn. And thereupon that little baker, Phfromer, though sweating and puffing from his walk, unfolded his tale, and heedless of the wonder that gathered in her saucer eyes and unfolded in her gaping, caverning mouth, he told how he thought as he chucked the $600 in his pocket to pay Staples, and jumped into his linen coat, what a good time it would be to go to Chicago and collect a little bill that his sister owed him. He was so struck with the idea that he immediately started for the ferry, not having time to stop at Staples', and off he posted for Chicago. It must of course have taken his sister a little while to raise the funds, as he was gone three weeks, but he came back with the $600 in his pocket and a new suit of clothes, which he bought in Poughkeepsie. He ended his tale by remarking, "and here I am," which was quite true. And now his friends hope the next time he goes to Ferry street he'll go by way of the N. Y., K. & S. Railroad, through Delhi, and thence by the Midland and Albany & Susquehanna to the Hudson River.

Kingston Moving.

Last Thursday one of our merchants returned from a visit to Kingston. He states that the above city is making great improvements in building and manufacturing affairs. We rejoice to learn of this state of progression, as it may be an incentive for some of our own people to bestir themselves, and accomplish what they might just as well do now as defer it for five or ten years hence.—Newburgh Journal.

The Sale of Col. Dodge's Furniture—Injunction and Arrest.

For some days past the furniture of Colonel Alphabet Dodge, of Esopus, has been advertised for sale, and on Thursday the auctioneer, Mr. Hamlin, mounted the block. Mr. Dodge's attorney at once served upon him an injunction from Judge Lawton, enjoining the sale. But Mr. Trueax, the lawyer in charge of the sale, ordered him to proceed, which he did, and the property was sold regardless of the injunction. An order of arrest was thereupon procured from Judge Miller, and on Friday Sheriff Kerr arrested Trueaux and Hamlin.—They immediately gave bail. The property was sold at a considerable sacrifice, but brought over $9,000.

Bees That Did Not Stay.

On Friday last a swarm of bees came and alighted on the limb of a fruit tree in a garden on the Weinberg and were safely hived, the people owning the premises being happy in the anticipation of a goodly store of honey in the coming autumn; but for some reason only known to the Queen Bee that hive wasn't found to be a pleasant dwelling place, and on Sunday afternoon the bees swarmed again, lighting on the lower branch of a pear tree, while the Queen of the swarm flew away in search of a more agreeable habitation. When the bees settled on the limb of the pear tree they formed a black, conical shape, with the apex downward, about the size and shape of an old-fashioned sugar-loaf, and with a greater amount of sweet producing power, beside the stinging capacity. There were two Freeman chaps who interviewed the above mentioned swarm of bees, but they took fine care to do it at a most respectable distance.

COUNTY.

—A correspondent of the New York Tribune writes very pleasantly of Lake Mohunk, and describes also how to reach the Shawangunk mountains.

—We are informed that the number of New York boarders stopping at Milton, Marlborough and Highland, Ulster county, is only about half as large as in previous years.—Po'keepsie News.

—A new pic,nic ground has heen prepared near Gardiner Station on the Wallkill Valley Railway in the grove of Floyd McKinstry. A large floor has been laid and other fixtures necessary for the comfort and convenience of parties. This will prove a very pleasant one for parties, and is near to the depot. There is also a very good hotel at the station kept by Mr. Doughty.

—A writer in the Ellenville Journal, describing a mountain trip, thus speaks of our hotels: So it came to pass that after many stoppages and much dust, and more "flies," we did about 2 P. M. roll into the venerable and highly respectable town, (we beg pardon, City,) of Kingston, to the great delight of the inhabitants who had evidently expected us. Kingston is justly celebrated for its hotels, which are celebrated for nothing in particular except their location. Either of them are safe places to stop at, as travellers will not be molested so long as they require nothing, mind their own business, and are sufficiently sensible of the infinite obligation they incur in being allowed to stay at all.

—Hear what a correspondent of an exchange says of a former Kingston resident: "We reached Woodstock, four and a half miles from the Summit, and there saw, to our surprise, Mr. H. S. VanEtten, formerly mine host of the "Corner," Kingston, but who was sent to Sing Sing for something or other.—But there he was, in all his grand proportions, rubicund and jolly as ever. We address him with "Why, Mr. V., what in the world are you doing so far from your base?" He recognized us, the jollity all faded out, and a shade of subdued sadness passed over his expressive countenance as he reverted to the past. "Ah," said he, "I am indeed away from home, I thought I had a very excellent and suitable location down there, but my friends "went back on me" and brought me out, and here I am." We expressed what sympathy we could in a few well chosen words, and passed on up the mountain."

Fell Overboard.

A carrier of the Po'keepsie Press in endeavoring to get on board the Mary Powell to sell papers, while that steamer was landing at Po'keepsie on Saturday evening, fell overboard and was with considerable difficulty saved from drowning. The name of the lad our informant did not learn.

—The present season at Richfield Springs is the dullest experienced for years. The number of visitors does not reach 1,000.

—The Coeymans Gazette mentions a rumor that work is to be commenced there on the West Shore road. Hope it is so.

—A rabid dog was killed in Athens last Thursday, and several other dogs that he had bitten.

—The Poughkeepsie Press makes a loud call for a score or more of local editors. Is that concern extra flush of funds?

—The Rhinebeck & Connecticut Railroad depot in Red Hook village will be located on the land of J. P. Fisk.

—Passenger trains that go by Dean's Corners, are reported by the Utilitarian to be usually filled with travellers, and freight trains overburdened with freight.

—A young man by the name of Sidney Bertholf, near Otisville, attempted to commit suicide Thursday last of week by hanging himself.

—The whole number of locomotives now in use upon the Midland is stated as one hundred, eight having been added within the last few weeks. These engines are mostly of very powerful capacity, and at the same time tastefully constructed.

—The travel on the steamers Mary Powell, Daniel Drew and Chauncey Vibbard, is unusually light for this season of the year. Those who should know say that it is at least one-third less than it has been for several years back. A short supply of money is the cause attributed for it.—Poughkeepsie News.

—What statistical data does the Newburgh Telegraph want about the thirty-six minutes' trip of the Mary Powell from here to Poughkeepsie? Isn't the fact itself sufficient or does that paper want it sworn to by the officers of the Powell?

—If the young man who blows the accordeon up street from early noon "till dewy eve" would only postpone his labors until after the business cares of the day are over, he would confer a great favor upon a long suffering, and well nigh distracted neighborhood. —Hudson Star. A relative to that chap toots a melodeon in dismal strain within hearing of our sanctum.

—John Anderson, of New Baltimore, came near being drowned in the river Thursday night. He then threw a line from a row boat to a passing steamer, which line coming taut gave his boat a sudden lurch and threw him in the water. He was timely rescued by two men out fishing—Alonzo Southard and John Maxwell.

—A careless, criminal accident happened in Newburgh on Friday, whereby a girl in passing the United States Hotel, was severely burned with spattering hot tar used by men in roofing the building. That roof, by the way, one of these days, won't be just the thing in case of flying sparks reaching it from any neighboring fire.

—Rev. Father Briardy, pastor of St. Patrick's Church of Newburgh, sailed from New York last Saturday, for Queenstown, Ireland, direct. He is in quest of health, and will be gone about four months. Previous to leaving Newburgh he was the recipient of nearly one thousand dollars from friends in his pastoral charge. We are glad our Catholic clergy are seeing the necessity for occasional rest from their labors.

LOCAL INTELLIGENCE.

CITY NOTES.

—The tenacity of flies in biting is now only equalled by their rapid increase.

—It was rather dull along the creek docks Saturday.

—Important changes in the ferry-boat time-table. See correct list on local page.

—We wonder if Sunday School pic-nics, when announced, don't temporarily increase the attendance of scholars.

—Ninety of the Baldwin's passengers last trip but one took the New York, Kingston & Syracuse cars on reaching here.

—The charter members of the G. A. R. are requested to meet at the office of Dr. A. T. Douglas on Friday evening, for organization.

—From the showers of Sunday the ground was made wet at a greater distance beneath the surface than at any time since May last.

—Don't forget the excursion of the German street Lutheran Sabbath School to-day. Music by Goeller's Band. Remember there will be no strong liquors sold on the boat.

—The trustees of the African M. E. Zion Church are trying to raise money enough to put their church building in good repair, of which it stands greatly in need.

—The weather was disagreeably hot on Sunday morning, church-going people sweltering in the sticky atmosphere. But a couple of glorious showers iced the air in the afternoon, and it was very pleasant.

—The Walkill Valley Railway office has been furnished with a broad-gauge, unabridged dictionary of the Webster pattern. The hands are searching its pages for the words "suitable depot" at Kingston.

—We learn that just after the shower on Sunday a quantity of rock fell into the quarry of the Newark Lime & Cement Manufacturing Company; but our intelligence came at too late an hour for us to learn particulars.

—The excursion of the Rondout M. E. Sunday School takes place to-morrow, 5th inst. The destination is a grove at Coxsackie, which is furnished with swings and is in every way finely adapted to pic-nicking purposes.—Burger's Band will furnish the music, and a fine time is anticipated. The scholars will assemble at the lecture room at quarter before 8 o'clock.

—A man came in Peter Weaver's saloon on Saturday and showed the oldest watch in town. It was built in 1605, and hence is 268 years. Upon its back it had a picture of Jacob and Rebecca, and also the sun, moon and stars.—In those early days the sun appears to have been more regular than at present, as he is set down to rise exactly at six o'clock every time. The watch is a curious specimen of jewelry architecture, and might have been used by Noah, as it looks sufficiently ancient.

—One of our German friends went into one of our barber shops between five and six o'clock on Sunday morning to have a shave. After getting shaved he walked off and meeting some friends, one of them accosted him thusly, "Say, Fritz, where did you get shaved?" Fritz replied, "Up in the little shop on Garden street." "Well," said the friend, "you only got shaved half," so Fritz went back and demanded five cents. "Vat for," says the barber. "Because you only shaved me half." The barber looked at Fritz to see if he was in earnest, and perceiving that he had left one side unshaved, said, "You yoost set down an' I'll make the rest off yoost so quick as never vas," after which Fritz went off happy.

The Soothing Summer Rain.

The heavy showers of Sunday afternoon soaked into the ground to the depth of about three inches, reaching the roots of almost every kind of garden truck. The dust was laid, and the atmosphere made pleasently cool, beside the landscape was freshened up until the green was almost as bright and vivid as in early June.

In the Field for Judge.

The following Democrats are now in the field for Supreme Court Judge, this fall:—Jacob H. Clute, Peter S. Danforth, Charles Holmes, of Schoharie, and John H. Colby, of Troy. Nice office that—fourteen years at $7,000 a year; total, $98,000. In addition to this is $500 a year for traveling expenses. This gives us a grand total for fourteen years of $105,000. As all our Judges travel as dead heads, on all our railroads, it will be seen that the $500 a year mentioned above is just so much clean cash added to the salary.—Albany Post.

Personal.

Rev. W. H. Mickle of the Second M. E. Church is at Scotch Bush, Orange County, spending a short vacation.

John R. Stebbins & Co. is going off to the sea-girt shore where clams grow and thrive. We pity the clams.

H. M. Beuell and wife left the city last night with the Baldwin for Long Branch, Ocean Grove and Shark River, where they will spend two weeks along the salt water.

A Busy Person.

About the busiest person we know of is Charlie Anderson, the steward of the Mary Powell, and he is about as good natured as he is busy. From five o'clock in the morning until the steamer reaches her wharf in this city at night, Charlie is literally on his feet. He not only has the tables and marketing to attend to, but helps collect tickets at the gang-way, and is always ready to escort a lady on shore and find her friends, or get her a carriage with the greatest good nature; he has a pleasant word or a smile for every one, and such a man is a pleasant chap to meet.

A Brave Policeman!

A disgraceful row occurred on Division street, Sunday afternoon, between two drunken men. After pounding each other for some time, they were finally parted by some by-standers. About this time, one of the "city's brave defenders," Patrick Ryan by name, appeared on the scene, and after inquiring and being informed what the row was, he proceeded to the seat of war, and after parleying awhile with one of the combatants he walked him up Mill street and let him go, and walked off. About five minutes later, this man again appeared on the scene and proceeded to kick up another muss, when Mr. Ryan again took him in charge and walked him around to a Lackawanna street liquor store, and again left him to his meditations. Is there a duplicate of Officer Myer handy?

Beautiful Effects.

There were some beautiful effects produced by the shower which occurred about 7 o'clock last Sunday evening. There were two rainbows, one of them vividly brilliant in color, that spanned the sky from the southern to the north-eastern horizon, and the setting sun produced grand hues on the Catskills, while the falling rain-drops appeared in the sunlight very like snow flakes. The entire landscape, as seen from the Weinberg for a few moments, wore an aspect that no fairy land ever imagined could approach in loveliness. Mountains, plains, and river were clothed in the colors which only the Great Creator can spread over the beautiful land in which we live.

RETURN OF THE MISSING BAKER.

He Goes to Ferry Street via Chicago.

Some three weeks ago we noted in these columns the sudden disappearance of Mr. Phfromer, a baker on Division street. The last seen of him he left the bakery clad in a linen coat and pants, the former of which he had just caught up from the counter as he went out, he said, to pay $600, which he had with him, to A. S. Staples. The baker returned not to his shop, and inquiry failed to elicit any trace of his whereabouts; and as week after week passed on no word came from him, and at last Phfromer was given up for lost.

But on Sunday as his little girl was standing on the doorstep she looked down the street and there was Phfromer, but no linen coat hung pendent from his sweating, fat shoulders; but with a cloth suit and a carpet-bag he stalked gloomily up the street toward his little bake-shop. He turned neither to the right nor the left. He minded not the hoodlums scratching up the mud in the gutters, nor did he stay to gaze upon the Opera House transparency, nor yet did he ask the Mansion House landlord wherefore he kept that flag flying when Grant had left three days ago. In fact nothing secured his attention, not even the little Fifteenth who sat on the curbstone playing Yankee Doodle on a jewsharp, though even a little baker who had just run out three weeks ago with $600 to pay a little bill, might have stopped to see how the little ebony perked his head one side, and screwed up his lips, and crooked his elbows to get around the turns of that tune. No, he bestowed not even one kick upon that urchin, but pegged away up the hill until he reached his store door, into which he stalked with the grim solemnity of a man just returned from his own funeral.

His little child thereupon gathered around him, and mounting his knee inquired where he had been, and what he went for, and what he came back for, and where his linen coat was, and a few hundred other harmless little inquiries whose purport our reporter failed to learn. And thereupon that little baker, Phfromer, though sweating and puffing from his walk, unfolded his tale, and heedless of the wonder that gathered in her saucer eyes and unfolded in her gaping, caverning mouth, he told how he thought as he chucked the $600 in his pocket to pay Staples, and jumped into his linen coat, what a good time it would be to go to Chicago and collect a little bill that his sister owed him. He was so struck with the idea that he immediately started for the ferry, not having time to stop at Staples', and off he posted for Chicago. It must of course have taken his sister a little while to raise the funds, as he was gone three weeks, but he came back with the $600 in his pocket and a new suit of clothes, which he bought in Poughkeepsie. He ended his tale by remarking, "and here I am," which was quite true. And now his friends hope the next time he goes to Ferry street he'll go by way of the N. Y., K. & S. Railroad, through Delhi, and thence by the Midland and Albany & Susquehanna to the Hudson River.

Kingston Moving.

Last Thursday one of our merchants returned from a visit to Kingston. He states that the above city is making great improvements in building and manufacturing affairs. We rejoice to learn of this state of progression, as it may be an incentive for some of our own people to bestir themselves, and accomplish what they might just as well do now as defer it for five or ten years hence.—Newburgh Journal.

The Sale of Col. Dodge's Furniture—Injunction and Arrest.

For some days past the furniture of Colonel Alphabet Dodge, of Esopus, has been advertised for sale, and on Thursday the auctioneer, Mr. Hamlin, mounted the block. Mr. Dodge's attorney at once served upon him an injunction from Judge Lawton, enjoining the sale. But Mr. Trueax, the lawyer in charge of the sale, ordered him to proceed, which he did, and the property was sold regardless of the injunction. An order of arrest was thereupon procured from Judge Miller, and on Friday Sheriff Kerr arrested Trueaux and Hamlin.—They immediately gave bail. The property was sold at a considerable sacrifice, but brought over $9,000.

Bees That Did Not Stay.

On Friday last a swarm of bees came and alighted on the limb of a fruit tree in a garden on the Weinberg and were safely hived, the people owning the premises being happy in the anticipation of a goodly store of honey in the coming autumn; but for some reason only known to the Queen Bee that hive wasn't found to be a pleasant dwelling place, and on Sunday afternoon the bees swarmed again, lighting on the lower branch of a pear tree, while the Queen of the swarm flew away in search of a more agreeable habitation. When the bees settled on the limb of the pear tree they formed a black, conical shape, with the apex downward, about the size and shape of an old-fashioned sugar-loaf, and with a greater amount of sweet producing power, beside the stinging capacity. There were two Freeman chaps who interviewed the above mentioned swarm of bees, but they took fine care to do it at a most respectable distance.

COUNTY.

—A correspondent of the New York Tribune writes very pleasantly of Lake Mohunk, and describes also how to reach the Shawangunk mountains.

—We are informed that the number of New York boarders stopping at Milton, Marlborough and Highland, Ulster county, is only about half as large as in previous years.—Po'keepsie News.

—A new pic-nic ground has been prepared near Gardiner Station on the Wallkill Valley Railway in the grove of Floyd McKinstry. A large floor has been laid and other fixtures necessary for the comfort and convenience of parties. This will prove a very pleasant one for parties, and is near to the depot. There is also a very good hotel at the station kept by Mr. Doughty.

—A writer in the Ellenville Journal, describing a mountain trip, thus speaks of our hotels: So it came to pass that after many stoppages and much dust, and more "flies," we did about 2 P. M. roll into the venerable and highly respectable town, (we beg pardon, City,) of Kingston, to the great delight of the inhabitants who had evidently expected us. Kingston is justly celebrated for its hotels, which are celebrated for nothing in particular except their location. Either of them are safe places to stop at, as travellers will not be molested so long as they require nothing, mind their own business, and are sufficiently sensible of the infinite obligation they incur in being allowed to stay at all.

—Hear what a correspondent of an exchange says of a former Kingston resident: "We reached Woodstock, four and a half miles from the Summit, and there saw, to our surprise, Mr. H. S. VanEtten, formerly mine host of the "Corner," Kingston, but who was sent to Sing Sing for something or other.—But there he was, in all his grand proportions, rubicund and jolly as ever. We address him with "Why, Mr. V., what in the world are you doing so far from your base?" He recognized us, the jollity all faded out, and a shade of subdued sadness passed over his expressive countenance as he reverted to the past. "Ah," said he, "I am indeed away from home, I thought I had a very excellent and suitable location down there, but my friends "went back on me" and brought me out, and here I am." We expressed what sympathy we could in a few well chosen words, and passed on up the mountain."

On motion adjourned to Lackawanna Engine House August 8th.

Fell Overboard.

A carrier of the Po'keepsie Press in endeavoring to get on board the Mary Powell to sell papers, while that steamer was landing at Po'keepsie on Saturday evening, fell overboard and was with considerable difficulty saved from drowning. The name of the lad our informant did not learn.

—To-morrow (Tuesday) the annual Sing Sing camp meeting begins.

—New Yorkers seem partial to Dean's Corners, but find difficulty in getting summer boarding places.

—A new meat peddler has appeared in one of the small villages of Delaware county. Why don't he wait till fall?

—The present season at Richfield Springs is the dullest experienced for years. The number of visitors does not reach 1,000.

—The Coeymans Gazette mentions a rumor that work is to be commenced there on the West Shore road. Hope it is so.

—A rabid dog was killed in Athens last Thursday, and several other dogs that he had bitten.

—The Poughkeepsie Press makes a loud call for a score or more of local editors. Is that concern extra flush of funds?

—The Rhinebeck & Connecticut Railroad depot in Red Hook village will be located on the land of J. P. Fisk.

—Passenger trains that go by Dean's Corners, are reported by the Utilitarian to be usually filled with travellers, and freight trains overburdened with freight.

—A young man by the name of Sidney Bertholf, near Otisville, attempted to commit suicide Thursday last of week by hanging himself.

—The whole number of locomotives now in use upon the Midland is stated as one hundred, eight having been added within the last few weeks. These engines are mostly of very powerful capacity, and at the same time tastefully constructed.

—The travel on the steamers Mary Powell, Daniel Drew and Chauncey Vibbard, is unusually light for this season of the year. Those who should know say that it is at least one-third less than it has been for several years back. A short supply of money is the cause attributed for it.—Poughkeepsie News.

—What statistical data does the Newburgh Telegraph want about the thirty-six minutes' trip of the Mary Powell from here to Poughkeepsie? Isn't the fact itself sufficient or does that paper want it sworn to by the officers of the Powell?

—If the young man who blows the accordeon up street from early noon "'till dewy eve" would only postpone his labors until after the business cares of the day are over, he would confer a great favor upon a long suffering, and well nigh distracted neighborhood. —Hudson Star. A relative to that chap toots a melodeon in dismal strain within hearing of our sanctum.

—John Anderson, of New Baltimore, came near being drowned in the river Thursday night. He then threw a line from a row boat to a passing steamer, which line coming taut gave his boat a sudden lurch and threw him in the water. He was timely rescued by two men out fishing—Alonzo Southard and John Maxwell.

—A careless, criminal accident happened in Newburgh on Friday, whereby a girl in passing the United States Hotel, was severely burned with spattering hot tar used by men in roofing the building. That roof, by the way, one of these days, won't be just the thing in case of flying sparks reaching it from any neighboring fire.

—Rev. Father Briardy, pastor of St. Patrick's Church of Newburgh, sailed from New York last Saturday, for Queenstown, Ireland, direct. He is in quest of health, and will be gone about four months. Previous to leaving Newburgh he was the recipient of nearly one thousand dollars from friends in his pastoral charge. We are glad our Catholic clergy are seeing the necessity for occasional rest from their labors.

BREVITIES.

—The whistle is to be substituted for the bugle in the French army.

—A Cincinnati milkman humors his customers by delivering the article in bottles.

—An enterprising dog in Utica secured samples from the clothing of eight lightning rod agents within half an hour after a thunder storm the other day.

—A warm spring on the bank of a lake, which was glowingly described by a Peoria reporter, proved to be the mouth of a waste-pipe from a neighboring brewery.

—Indianapolis is listening to a knotty law-suit in which there are one hundred and three defendants. The jury does most of the swearing.

—Miss Fannie W. Roberts, of Kittery, is the first woman in Maine endowed with authority from the Governor to solemnize marriages.

—A stubborn oarsman said he could pull a shell from Pittsburg to Cincinnati, a distance of five hundred miles, in six days. Being doubted, he did it half an hour inside of the time.

—A Chicago editor heard once the words, "Sister, thou wast mild and lovely," sung at the funeral of an old lady who was known to have been a perfect vixen.

—A Washington inventor is hard at work on a model for a dog that can run along the top of a fence. He expects to wreak destruction on the cats and become wealthier than the Rothschilds.

—A moss rose is beautiful because it is so bordered; it is a landscape seen through trees. So is a view through a half raised window curtain, and distant scenery through a long suite of rooms; so are lights to foregrounds, and shadows on backgrounds in all pictures.

—A reduction of the assessed valuation of Ogdensburg, N. Y., has so diminished the funds in the hands of the board of education, that the Ogdensburg educational institute has been forced to suspend for a year.

—A painful rumor—which happily lacks confirmation—is in circulation that Capt. Fred. Grant has forgotten the Ohio lady and engaged himself to an Indian damsel whom he met in Nebraska, a few weeks ago.

—A young Texan who had two horses stolen, stole two himself, just to get even with the world, but he was captured, and instead of being hanged at once, was branded, flogged, and tortured all night, receiving his coup de grace from a pistol ball in the morning.

—A wicked wretch in Madison, Wis., took a seat in church directly behind his rival who had "got away" with Sarah Jane, and during the service slipped an active clinch bug down his back. It made the fellow so uneasy that he was compelled to leave the church, and the other fellow went home with the girl.

—Narcisse Rodigruez, an eminent California horse thief, lately a prisoner in the State prison, told the steward to prepare him a dose that would make him sick so he could get rid of work, which was irksome to him. The steward's spirit of accommodation exceeded his knowledge of pharmacy evidently, for shortly after taking the dose Mr. Rodigruez was lying in a plain pine coffin.

THE GREAT SOUTH AMERICAN

BLOOD PURIFIER

JURUBEBA

Is the most powerful cleanser, strengthener and remover of Glandular Obstructions known to Materia Medica.

It is specially adapted to constitutions "worn down" and debilitated by the warm weather of Spring and Summer, when the blood is not in active circulation, consequently gathering impurities from sluggishness and imperfect action of the secretive organs, and is manifested by Tumors, Eruptions, Blotches, Boils, Pustules, Scrofula, &c., &c.

When weary and languid from overwork, and dullness, drowsiness and inertia take the place of energy and vigor, the system needs a Tonic to build it up and help the Vital Forces to regain their recuperative power.

In the heat of Summer, frequently the Liver and Spleen do not properly perform their functions; the Uterine and Urinary Organs are inactive, producing weakness of the stomach and intestines and a predisposition to bilious derangement.

DR. WELLS' EXTRACT OF JURUBEBA

Is prepared directly from the SOUTH AMERICAN PLANT, and is peculiarly suited to all these difficulties; it will cleanse the VITIATED BLOOD, strengthen the LIFE-GIVING POWERS, and REMOVE ALL OBSTRUCTIONS from IMPAIRED AND ENFEEBLED Organs.

It should be freely taken, as Jurubeba is pronounced by medical writers the most efficient PURIFIER, TONIC and DEOBSTRUENT known in the whole range of medicinal plants.

RAILWAY COMPANY'S

First Mortgage 7 Per Cent

SINKING FUND

GOLD BONDS,

FREE OF GOVERNMENT TAX.

An East and West Air Line of 152 Miles Indianapolis, Ind., to Decatur, Ill.

Passing through the richest agricultural and mineral counties of Indiana and Illinois, and being the only East and West Line occupying a belt thirty miles wide. It crosses the best part of the newly discovered of Indiana, which has given a greater impetus to the manufacture of iron than any previous discovery in America. The company owns 200,000 acres of the best block coal lands, besides 30,000 acres of farming lands.

$1,000,000 in Cash has been already expended on this road, of which 30 miles in Illinois are finished and in operation. Fifty-five miles more, completing the Western Division, Decatur to the Coal Fields, will be completed this fall and the whole road in 1873.

Upward of Two Millions of Dollars more are pledged by the enterprise, partly by counties, towns, and individuals along the line, but chiefly by wealthy capitalists, among whom are W. H. Guion (of Williams & Guion), Sidney Dillon, Jay Cooke & Co., Clark, Dodge & Co., J. & W. Seligman, Vibbard, Foote & Co., and Paul S. Forbes of New York, Benj. E. Bates of Boston, Henry Lewis of Philadelphia and Geo. M. Pullman of Chicago.

The road connects at both termini with the most important Through Railway Lines of the West, and being by many miles shorter than any other line, will be an indispensable link in through traffic, while its local business alone will insure an ample return.

Bonds $1,000 each, payable to Union Trust Company, Trustee, or bearer, July 1, 1901, in gold. Coupons, also in gold, payable January 1 and July 1 in New York, or at Union Bank of London, at fixed exchange £7 sterling.

Sinking Fund of 2½ per cent a year on gross earnings to be invested by Trustee in Bonds at not exceeding par.

The Daily Freeman.

BREVITIES.

—The whistle is to be substituted for the bugle in the French army.

—A Cincinnati milkman humors his customers by delivering the article in bottles.

—An enterprising dog in Utica secured samples from the clothing of eight lightning rod agents within half an hour after a thunder storm the other day.

—A warm spring on the bank of a lake, which was glowingly described by a Peoria reporter, proved to be the mouth of a waste-pipe from a neighboring brewery.

—Indianapolis is listening to a knotty law-suit in which there are one hundred and three defendants. The jury does most of the swearing.

—Miss Fannie W. Roberts, of Kittery, is the first woman in Maine endowed with authority from the Governor to solemnize marriages.

—A stubborn oarsman said he could pull a shell from Pittsburg to Cincinnati, a distance of five hundred miles, in six days. Being doubted, he did it half an hour inside of the time.

—A Chicago editor heard once the words, "Sister, thou wast mild and lovely," sung at the funeral of an old lady who was known to have been a perfect vixen.

—A Washington inventor is hard at work on a model for a dog that can run along the top of a fence. He expects to wreak destruction on the cats and become wealthier than the Rothschilds.

—A moss rose is beautiful because it is so bordered; it is a landscape seen through trees. So is a view through a half raised window curtain, and distant scenery through a long suite of rooms; so are lights to foregrounds, and shadows on backgrounds in all pictures.

—A reduction of the assessed valuation of Ogdensburg, N. Y., has so diminished the funds in the hands of the board of education, that the Ogdensburg educational institute has been forced to suspend for a year.

—A painful rumor—which happily lacks confirmation—is in circulation that Capt. Fred. Grant has forgotten the Ohio lady and engaged himself to an Indian damsel whom he met in Nebraska, a few weeks ago.

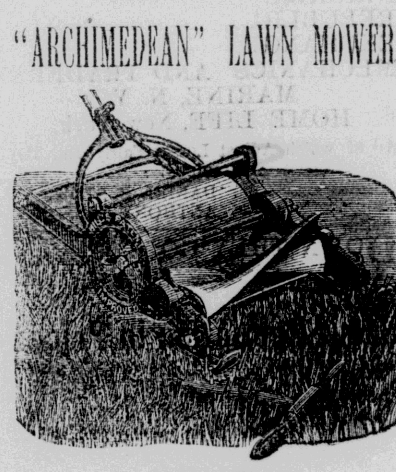

—A young Texan who had two horses stolen, stole two himself, just to get even with the world, but he was captured, and instead of being hanged at once, was branded, flogged, and tortured all night, receiving his coup de grace from a pistol ball in the morning.

—A wicked wretch in Madison, Wis., took a seat in church directly behind his rival who had "got away" with Sarah Jane, and during the service slipped an active clinch bug down his back. It made the fellow so uneasy that he was compelled to leave the church, and the other fellow went home with the girl.

—Narcisse Rodigruez, an eminent California horse thief, lately a prisoner in the State prison, told the steward to prepare him a dose that would make him sick so he could get rid of work, which was irksome to him. The steward's spirit of accommodation exceeded his knowledge of pharmacy evidently, for shortly after taking the dose Mr. Rodigruez was lying in a plain pine coffin.

THE GREAT SOUTH AMERICAN BLOOD PURIFIER

Is the most powerful cleanser, strengthener and remover of Glandular Obstructions known to Materia Medica.

It is specially adapted to constitutions "worn down" and debilitated by the warm weather of Spring and Summer, when the blood is not in active circulation, consequently gathering impurities from sluggishness and imperfect action of the secretive organs, and is manifested by Tumors, Eruptions, Blotches, Boils, Pustules, Scrofula, &c., &c.

When weary and languid from overwork, and dullness, drowsiness and inertia take the place of energy and vigor, the system needs a Tonic to build it up and help the Vital Forces to regain their recuperative power.

In the heat of Summer, frequently the Liver and Spleen do not properly perform their functions; the Uterine and Urinary Organs are inactive, producing weakness of the stomach and intestines and a predisposition to bilious derangement.

DR. WELLS'

EXTRACT OF JURUBEBA

is prepared directly from the SOUTH AMERICAN PLANT, and is peculiarly suited to all these difficulties; it will cleanse the VITIATED BLOOD, strengthen the LIFE-GIVING POWERS, and REMOVE ALL OBSTRUCTIONS from IMPAIRED AND ENFEEBLED Organs.

It should be freely taken, as Jurubeba is pronounced by medical writers the most efficient PURIFIER, TONIC and DEOBSTRUENT known in the whole range of medicinal plants.

THE INDIANA AND ILLINOIS CENTRAL RAILWAY COMPANY'S

SINKING FUND

GOLD BONDS,

FREE OF GOVERNMENT TAX.

An East and West Air Line of 152 Miles Indianapolis, Ind., to Decatur, Ill.

Passing through the richest agricultural and mineral counties of Indiana and Illinois, and being the only East and West Line occupying a belt thirty miles wide. It crosses the best part of the newly discovered of Indiana, which has given a greater impetus to the manufacture of iron than any previous discovery in America. The company owns 200,000 acres of the best block coal lands, besides 30,000 acres of farming lands.

$1,000,000 in Cash has been already expended on this road, of which 30 miles in Illinois are finished and in operation. Fifty-five miles more, completing the Western Division, Decatur to the Coal Fields, will be completed this fall and the whole road in 1873.

Upward of Two Millions of Dollars more are pledged by the enterprise, partly by counties, towns, and individuals along the line, but chiefly by wealthy capitalists, among whom are W. H. Guion (of Williams & Guion), Sidney Dillon, Jay Cooke & Co., Clark, Dodge & Co., J. & W. Seligman, Vibbard, Foote & Co., and Paul S. Forbes of New York, Benj. E. Bates of Boston, Henry Lewis of Philadelphia and Geo. M. Pullman of Chicago.

The road connects at both termini with the most important Through Railway Lines of the West, and being by many miles shorter than any other line, will be an indispensable link in through traffic, while its local business alone will insure an ample return.

Bonds $1,000 each, payable to Union Trust Company, Trustee, or bearer, July 1 1904, in gold [illegible] coin. Coupons, also in gold, payable January 1 and July 1 in New York, or at Union Bank of London, at fixed exchange £7 sterling.

Sinking Fund of 2½ per cent a year on gross earnings to be invested by Trustee in Bonds at not exceeding par.

Mr. GEORGE WALKER, late President Third National Bank, Springfield, is Treasurer of the Company. Bonds for sale at 90 and accrued interest by the Company's Financial Agents,
